LITERARY INTELLIGENCE AND NOTES ON NEW BOOKS.
EDITOR'S SPECIAL DEPARTMENT.
OFFICIAL INTELLIGENCE—
THE ARMY.
THE NAVY.

Among the contributors to the first number are Admiral DAVIS, U. S. N., Gen. C. G. HARNARD, Gen. WILLIAM F. BARRY, U. S. A., and Capt. E. C. BOYNTON, Instructor of the Military Academy.

In the second number the contributions will be from the pens of distinguished Military and Scientific writers and upon topics of their special study.

The Publisher has the pleasure of announcing that contributions are already received from many of our most distinguished Officers of both services, and other writers of the highest authority.

This enterprise has been undertaken at the solicitation of many prominent officers, to supply an acknowledged want of the Service, due to the immense development of the military and art of war in our country.

It has been placed under the editorial care of HENRY COPPEE, Esq., Professor of English Literature and History in the University of Pennsylvania, whose military experience and literary attainments are sufficient warrant that the Magazine will be rendered worthy the patronage of all, in and out of the Service, who are interested in military and naval affairs.

Its DEPARTMENT ARMAMENT will cover the entire scope of War Topics, including Modifications and Inventions of Arms of all kinds; Notes on the Organization of Armies and Navies; Historical Sketches and Illustrations; Interesting Narratives of Personal Experience; Stories of Military and Naval Life; Military Hygiene, and such other themes as are directly or indirectly connected with the great subject.

The columns of OFFICIAL INTELLIGENCE will be always full and complete, and be brought up to the very day of going to press. The Departments at Washington have offered every facility for the fulfillment of this promise.

The Editor's "SPECIAL DEPARTMENT" will present, from month to month, a Sketch of the Progress of the War; a clear statement of our Foreign and International Relations; and such varied Colloquy with Readers and Correspondents as will keep the Journal constantly in rapport with its Patrons. Extracts from Army Letters, and Translations from Foreign Military and Naval Magazines will also appear in this department.

Communications, Intelligence and correspondence are solicited from officers at the seats of war. When used, they will be paid for liberally.

Book Notices and Literary Intelligence will constitute a prominent feature of the work, because our educated enlistment soldiers, who were readers before the war, but are now shut out from the use of extensive libraries and bookstores, will desire to be informed of what is being published, and what is most worth reading.

The Political aspect of the Magazine will be patriotic, but impartial. Its pages will be no field for intemperate discussion; but there shall always be a clear recognition of the honor of the country, and the majesty of the Constitutional Government, in the present struggle, and a determination to further the grand objects for which our soldiers are in the field and our navy afloat.

In all purely Military Criticism it shall be the aim of this Journal, while doing full justice, to tell the truth, "without partiality, fear or affection," where any information at all can be given.

The following are a fewfully the many flattering testimonials from distinguished Officers and Citizens.

GEN. GRANT SAYS:

"Such a Magazine is much needed, and is deserving of the most liberal patronage. Every facility will be given for its circulation in this military division."

GEN. SEYMOUR SAYS:

"I am exceedingly gratified to learn that such a Magazine as you propose is to be commenced. For many years we have waited for just such a journal, and I am glad that I have lived long enough to know that the necessity for sound military intelligence is appreciated by the people."

REAR-ADMIRAL DUPONT SAYS:

"I feel interested and gratified that such a work should be ushered under your auspices, and shall take pleasure in giving it any aid in my power."

COMMANDER H. A. WISE SAYS:

"I wish your every success, and I feel confident that should the Magazine be conducted in a thoroughly impartial spirit, it will meet with hosts of friends and contributors from army and navy."

HENRY W. LONGFELLOW SAYS:

"Your new Magazine, I have no doubt, will be very successful, not only in the army and navy, but among civilians, for every one is deeply interested in this Holy War and Modern Crusade against Barbarism."

The size of the Magazine will be octavo—each number containing 112 pages—printed on a superior quality of paper and in the highest style of the art.

TERMS—$3 per year, in advance; single numbers sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of 30 cents. For sale by all Book and Periodical Dealers.

Orders for the work may be addressed to

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

HALIFAX, Monday, Jan. 25.

The Royal Mail steamship Canada, from Liverpool on Saturday, the 9th inst., at 9:30 A. M., and Queenstown P. M. of the 10th, arrived here at 5 P. M. to-day.

She has four passengers for Halifax and thirty-six for Boston.

The Canada makes the following report: Experienced heavy gales for six days, and head winds during the entire passage. On the 10th inst. exchanged signals with the steamship Hecla, and on the 14th inst. with the steamship Asia, both bound to Liverpool.

The steamship City of Cork, from New-York, reached Liverpool on the evening of the 7th inst.

The steamship City of Washington, from New-York, arrived at Liverpool on the morning of the 8th inst.

The steamship Australian, from New-York, arrived at Queenstown on the 6th, and reached Liverpool at 3 P. M. of the 8th.

It was stated that England was about to make a naval demonstration in German waters.

The new ship Geo. N. Warren, of Boston, was lost on her first voyage to Liverpool, ran ashore on Carnsore Point, Ireland, and was full of water.

GREAT BRITAIN.

Her Highness the Princess of Wales gave birth to a fine boy at Frogmore on the 8th instant. The mother and her child were progressing most favorably.

Judgment would be given in the Alexandra case on the 11th of January.

The Frankfort Senate had refused its authorization to the drawing by lottery of the steamer Great Eastern, and had demanded from the Frankfort Consul at Liverpool an account of his connection with the scheme.

Dr. Temple, Bishop of Ely, died on the 7th instant. Parliament had been formally prorogued until the 4th of February. It is then to meet for the dispatch of business.

The investigation in regard to the stranding of the steamer Anglia in Galway Bay, has been concluded. The Court, though blaming Capt. Parsons somewhat in running in at night, yet took pleasure in returning him his certificate.

FRANCE.

Four suspected conspirators had been arrested in Paris. They came from England. Three of them are Italians and are named TARNACO, GAZNE and INFERNOZZI. The fourth gave an assumed name. It is asserted that one of the conspirators had made a complete avowal of the criminal object of the conspiracy. At their residence were found a great quantity of gunpowder, four poignards, four revolvers, four ingenious air guns, and eight hand grenades of the Orsini pattern.

A letter dated Lugano, was found on one of the conspirators very compromising of all concerned.

The Paris correspondent of the London Times says:

"Instructions are thown out that the attitude of the Opposition in the Legislature has something to do with the arrests, and the authority of the Government would be less controlled were it known that the people were conspiring."

The trial of the four Italians will take place during the February assizes. Nothing had been discovered to compromise any other persons.

The Paris Bourse was dull on the 8th at 66f. 70c. for the Rentes.

The Paris correspondent of the Times mentions the case of a large American order for railway iron being given to a French house, the French article being found as good and certainly cheaper than the English.

THE HOLSTEIN QUESTION.

Matters continued to wear a threatening appearance.

The King of Denmark visited the fortifications of Frederickstadt on the 5th instant, and passed through Flensburgh on the 7th for Sonderburgh.

The greatest activity prevailed in the dockyards at Copenhagen.

It was asserted that England had addressed a fourth note to the Federal Diet, urging a conference.

It is denied that Prussia has withdrawn from the proposition for the joint occupation of Schleswig by the Austrian and Prussian troops.

The Danish troops still occupied the northern part of Rendsburg on the 7th inst.

It was stated that Prince ANGUSTENBURG intended to declare Kiel a free port.

The London Times says:

"With the view of asserting English diplomacy and for the protection of British interests, it is not unlikely that the Channel fleet just ordered home may soon show itself in German waters. It is owing to British counsels that the Danes have abandoned important positions and sacrificed the greater part of the country which is the subject of dispute. But as there is a great difference between sympathy and interference, England is bound to weigh well the consequences of any act which would entangle her in a war. To the prudence of the Government, therefore, the conduct of affairs must be committed, and Parliament will doubtless sanction any step Lord PALMERSTON may take to preserve the honor and dignity of the nation."

The Times regards the commencement of the campaign in Schleswig as almost certain within a brief space.

ITALY.

GARIBALDI'S resignation of his seat was formally communicated to the Italian Parliament on the 7th inst. Several members urged its non-acceptance, but it was finally accepted, together with the resignations of other members of the "Left."

The London Morning Advertiser states, on the best authority, that the recent proclamation to GARIBALDI is a forgery. GARIBALDI disavows it.

POLAND.

Affairs in Poland remained without change.

LATEST VIA QUEENSTOWN.

LONDON, Jan. 10.

Consols (after official hours yesterday, closed week at 90¼. The market was very dull all around.

The tax was charged with bribery and murder on board the ship Flowery Land, were brought up and remanded for trial.

It is stated that the Federal force in and upon the borders of Holstein number 50,000, and would soon reach 100,000.

The Committee in the Federal Diet had made a report decidedly adverse to the Treaty of London.

PARIS, Saturday, Jan. 9.

LONDON, Saturday, Jan. 9.

The Indian mail, with dates from Bombay to Dec. 14 and Calcutta Dec. 5, was forwarded by the Cunard.

It is asserted that the disaffection on the Punjaub frontier has been greatly exaggerated, and that the affair is a mere repetition of a trifling frontier war, such as has been fought twenty times since the annexation of the Punjaub.

There is no later news of military operations in India.

Colored Recruits in Kentucky.

We published yesterday an order issued by Gov. BRAMLETTE, of Kentucky, forbidding the recruiting of colored troops within that State. We find in the Louisville Journal the following explanatory letter from him on that subject:

COMMONWEALTH OF KENTUCKY,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, FRANKFORT, Dec. 14, 1863.

Capt. Edward Cahill, Recruiting Colored Troops:

SIR: Yours of the 10th inst., informing me that you had been ordered to Kentucky to recruit "free colored men" for the army of the United States, and asking my consent for so doing, is before me. You do not inform me by what authority you come to Kentucky to recruit "free colored men." I know of no act of Congress requiring such service, nor have I seen any order from the War Department directing it. On the contrary, I am well assured that in deference to our peculiar position, and to avoid unnecessarily aggravating the troubles of the loyal men of Kentucky, the authorities at Washington do not contemplate recruiting "colored men" in Kentucky. We are ready to fill our quota from the "free" white citizens of Kentucky. We will unhesitatingly comply with the requisition for men to defend our Government. We claim the right to furnish from citizens whose duty it is to make that defence, and who are ready to comply with the requirements of the service. The duty of defence devolves upon those who enjoy the benefits of our Government. From such we will fill the call upon us. We presume that negro men who owe the duties of allegiance to the Government will be accepted for its defence. We will furnish them if, therefore, you came to recruit "colored men" for the benefit of Kentucky, we decline your services. If you came to recruit for the benefit of another State, we deny your right to do so, and forbid it. No State has the right under any law or order to enter Kentucky to recruit either white or "colored" men. We do not intermeddle with any State that chooses to recruit "colored" men within its own limits. But no State that is not willing to meet the measure of duty by contributing its quota from its own population shall be permitted to shelter from duty behind the free negro population of Kentucky.

We shall meet the demand upon us without enlisting colored men, and your State must meet its call from its own white or "colored" men, as may best suit its people, and not assume to recruit either white or black in Kentucky.

Yours, &c., THOMAS E. BRAMLETTE,
Governor of Kentucky.

From Missouri and Kansas.

ST. LOUIS, MO., Monday, Jan. 25.

The extremely warm weather of the past few days has materially softened the ice in the harbor, and to-day an immense field at the upper city moved down some 200 yards, forcing the steamer Emilie from her moorings, but doing no damage. Several steamers forced their way through the ice to-day to a position on safe the opposite side of the river. The ice has disappeared six miles below the city, and it is thought our harbor will be sufficiently clear to-morrow to allow the ferry boats to run. A general break-up and resumption of navigation is anticipated.

CHARLES NOTZ, who has been on trial for two days for robbing the United States Express of $60,000 last August, has been convicted and sentenced to ten years' imprisonment in the Penitentiary.

Stockton Hall and two adjoining buildings, in Leavenworth, were burned to-day. The principal sufferers were COCHRAN & Co., ARMOUR & Co., and JOHN MITCHELL. Loss, $30,000.

Resolutions renominating ABRAHAM LINCOLN for the Presidency have passed the Kansas Legislature unanimously.

The Holmes' Hole Murder.

BOSTON, Sunday, Jan. 24.

The preliminary examination of Capt. GUSTAVUS D. SMITH, arrested on charge of the murder of Mr. LUCE, at Holmes' Hole, resulted to-day in holding the accused for trial. SMITH is a retired sea captain of good reputation among his neighbors, and the evidence against him, though deemed sufficient to carry the case to a higher court, was simply circumstantial.

Escape of Rebel Officers.

QUINCY, C. H., Monday, Jan. 25.

MARSHALL KANE, of Baltimore, and thirteen Confederates, mostly naval officers from Johnson's Island and Camp Douglas, had here this morning, by the Grand Trunk Railway, for Rivière du Loup, to take the steamer for Nova Scotia.

KENTUCKY AND TENNESSEE.

Affairs at Chattanooga—The Rebels Recovering Big Lazar Numbers—Reinforcements Going to Mobile—Raids into Kentucky Threatened—The Reported Rebel Advance Contradicted—The Reorganization of the State Government.

CINCINNATI, Monday, Jan. 25.

A special dispatch to the Commercial from Chattanooga, dated 21st inst., says:

The rebel orders requiring soldiers to serve for three years or more is causing hundreds to desert. Forty-six came in to-day in one squad.

The Forty-fourth Indiana and the Twenty-fourth and Twenty-sixth Ohio infantry, and the First, Second, Third and Fourth Ohio cavalry have reinlisted.

The rebel Maj.-Gen. VANCE and two of his Staff, captured at the front, have arrived here and been sent to Nashville.

A dispatch from Louisville to the Gazette says:

"The city is filled with rumors of an intended rebel raid into East Kentucky. It is said the rebels will enter the State at three different points."

Three hundred rebel prisoners from Knoxville arrived at Nashville on Saturday.

There is great activity around the camps at Indianapolis in organizing regiments and brigades.

NASHVILLE, Monday, Jan. 25.

The excitement regarding Knoxville was totally unfounded. The demonstrations of LONGSTREET were apparently intended only to recover the foraging ground taken by Gen. FOSTER, and the latest information is, that he is retiring. Our troops are in Winter quarters. Gen. FOSTER anticipates no attack, and is able to repel any LONGSTREET can make.

There are reasons to doubt the truth of the report that LEE has reinforced LONGSTREET. No active operations in that vicinity need be expected for weeks.

Gen. VANCE and his brigade which were captured near Knoxville, arrived here to-night. VANCE had captured one of our forage trains, when Gen. SHERMAN went in pursuit and captured the entire rebel force.

Gen. GRANT left for St. Louis to-day.

Efforts toward the reconstruction of the State Government are extending throughout the Counties of Middle Tennessee, but with little hope of its early return to the Union. The Radicals, with Gov. JOHNSON at their head, are in favor of calling a Convention to nullify the State Constitution, and frame a new one on emancipation principles.

The people of East Tennessee are reviving the old project of forming a separate State of that section.

Rebel officers and soldiers continue to come in daily for the purpose of taking advantage of the amnesty proclamation.

FROM FORTRESS MONROE.

Gen. Butler's Return—Week of the Thomas Sails—Miscellaneous.

FORTRESS MONROE, Friday, Jan. 22.

Maj.-Gen. BUTLER returned to Fortress Monroe this morning.

Capt. AINSWORTH arrived this morning from the wreck of the propeller Thomas Sims, having succeeded in discharging the valuable cargo, and he has landed it safely and in good order at this place, notwithstanding the heavy storm he had in encounter much of the time. When he left the wreck yesterday, the tide was ebbing and flowing into the ship, and her stern was embedded twelve feet in the sand, and the water was within a few inches of her cabin floor. The water rises as the stern settles.

Capt. S. W. COFFIN and Mr. FERRIS, the Engineer, rendered valuable services in saving the cargo, as also did the Mate, Mr. TYRRIS.

ESCAPE OF JEFF. DAVIS' SERVANTS—REBEL MAIL AGENTS ARRESTED—MISCELLANEOUS.

FORTRESS MONROE, Saturday, Jan. 23.

The Norfolk Old Dominion of 20-day, says: "There is a rumor that JEFF. DAVIS' colored steward and chambermaid have arrived in Norfolk, having successfully escaped the rebel chief. We don't vouch for the story."

AUGUSTUS and LOUIS BURNESS were detected yesterday in Norfolk in receiving and distributing the rebel mail and sent to jail.

Maj. BEAUDRY, the noted guerrilla, is rapidly recovering from his attack of small-pox. Twenty refugees from Richmond, Petersburgh and Augusta, Ga., arrived in Norfolk yesterday.

FROM THE MISSISSIPPI.

Reconstruction in Arkansas.

CAIRO, Monday, Jan. 25.

The steamer Forsyth, with the Tenth Illinois Volunteers, who have reinlisted, and who muster 800 strong, has arrived here.

Col. CAMPBELL, of the Third Iowa regiment, brings the following information from Little Rock concerning the reconstruction movement in Arkansas:

The State Convention, which assembled on the 8th inst., had about completed its labors. The greater portion of the State was represented; and no deliberative body that ever assembled in the State has composed more men of solid worth and intelligence than this Convention.

An article prohibiting Slavery was adopted with but one dissenting vote. The Constitution is to be submitted to the people on the second Monday in March, at which time the State Officers and members of the Legislature will be elected.

The Legislature is to meet on the third Monday in April. The action of the Convention was universally satisfactory to the loyal men. The qualification of voters is that prescribed by the President in his Proclamation. It is believed that the loyal citizens will be able to poll 20,000 votes for the Constitution. The Convention will recommend a suitable person for Provisional Governor. Judge MURRAY is spoken of in this connection.

The editor of the Little Rock Democrat has been arrested by the military authorities for publishing disloyal sentiments, and his paper suppressed. A new paper will soon be started by men of undoubted loyalty, who will use their influence in favor of the reorganization movement.

Cotton was more active at Memphis on the 23d than for some days. Sales, 600 bales at 30c. @70c.; receipts, 208 bales. 300 bales arrived at Cairo to-day, 200 bales of which goes East, and the remainder to St. Louis.

From San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Monday, Jan. 25.

The ship Torrent, from Shanghai, arrived at Puget Sound after twenty-one days, bringing China dates to Dec. 5. Passengers bring information that the Imperialists are under Maj. GORDON. It is asserted that the French and English troops had invested Soochow, and there was no doubt the city had fallen. The noted Gen. BURGEVINE, who deserted the Imperial cause, and took up with TAIPINGS, has been deported from China by order of the American Consul. He went to Yokolena, Japan, but it was thought he would shortly return. He had been mostly joined the Imperialists.

The Case of William Greenwood.

TOLEDO, O. W., Monday, Jan. 25.

The notorious WILLIAM GREENWOOD has finally been found guilty of murder, and was immediately sentenced to be hung.

Additional Securities for Volunteers in Maryland.

BALTIMORE, Monday, Jan. 25.

The County Commissioners of Frederick County to-day voted $100,000 for volunteers.

Movements of Gen. Grant.

LOUISVILLE, Monday, Jan. 25.

Gen. GRANT passed here this morning, en route to St. Louis, to visit a son who is dangerously ill.

FROM WASHINGTON.

THE NAVY DEPARTMENT INVESTIGATION.

Passage of the Test-Oath Resolution in the Senate.

THE DEFICIENCY BILL IN THE HOUSE.

A Substitute for the Senate Enrollment Act.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE N. Y. TIMES.

WASHINGTON, Monday, Jan. 25.

TOO SPECULATIVE BY HALF.

J. SIDNEY HOWARD, formerly of New-York City, was dishonorably discharged from employment in the Treasury Department, for a speculation out of a Welsh boy, a sort of private secretary to himself, as editor of the Bankers' Magazine, where he got appointed at a salary of $1,200 a year. The lad was given to understand that his pay was but $600. His natural outcry at accidentally learning that his protector and superior was pocketing every month $50 of his earnings, reached Secretary CHASE's ears, and led to the instantaneous unsheathing of the sword of justice.

GEN. GANTT'S VIEWS.

Gen. GANTT, of Arkansas, will issue an address to the Southern people, urging them to lay down their arms and return to their allegiance under the President's Amnesty Proclamation, and declaring that, as Slavery is dead, there is nothing left for the South to fight for.

SENATOR BAYARD AND THE OATH.

The Senate will pass the resolution requiring its members to take the oath, and Senator BAYARD will take it, and then Senator BAYARD will resign.

CHIEF OF THE CAVALRY BUREAU.

Gen. WILSON, of Gen. GRANT's Staff, has been appointed to succeed Gen. STONEMAN as Chief of the Cavalry Bureau. Gen. STONEMAN assumes command of the Cavalry in Gen. GRANT's Department.

THE TAX ON WHISKY.

The whisky men are becoming desperate over the passage of the bill in the House increasing the tax on that article. The dealers pronounce it an ex post facto law, and declare their intention to contest it in the Courts if it passes the Senate in its present shape. One New-York firm, which last year paid over $600,000 taxes on the article, and the largest dealers in the West, besides innumerable smaller dealers from different parts of the country, are here, sworn in detail to stay the passage through the Senate.

TO ENCOURAGE IMMIGRATION.

The Immigration Committee will probably recommend the sending to the principal Northern States of Europe Commissioners to conferate and encourage the enormous emigration to America, which is expected this year. The Germans of this city have raised by subscription $50,000 to bring a portion of their compatriots into Maryland.

DISPATCHES TO THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, Monday, Jan. 25.

SUBSTITUTE FOR THE SENATE ENROLLMENT ACT.

The substitute reported to-day by Representative SCHENCK from the Military Committee for the Senate bill amendatory of the Enrollment Act, makes the quota proportionate in the number subject to the draft, with allowances for enlistments in the naval service of such as are liable to draft, and provides for further drafts if the quotas shall not be filled by the first. It allows as substitutes persons not liable to draft at the time or in the military or naval service. Additions to existing enrollments shall be made of those omitted before of young men arriving at the age of twenty, and persons who have been in the military service less than two years, and all persons of foreign birth who have voted at a State or Territorial election. Marines drafted may serve eight days to elect by enlist in the naval service; but pilots, engineers and mariners of seamen in the naval service may not be drafted. None are exempt except those physically disabled, the President, Vice-President, heads of executive departments, Governors of States, and men in the naval and military service, and those who, having served two years, are honorably discharged. Persons procuring substitutes are exempt only from that draft, and in no case for more than a year, when the name is again placed upon the enrollment list. The bill prescribes the penalty of a fine of five hundred dollars and imprisonment not exceeding five years, for resistance to the draft. It retains the three hundred dollars commutation of unpatriotically inclined persons who pay, but makes the lowest limit of income $1,200 instead of $1,600. It does not exempt clergymen, nor allow commutation exemptions of able-bodied persons.

THE MAIL SERVICE.

The bill introduced by Representative ALLEY to-day to secure the speedy transmission of the mails, makes provision against the suspension of mail facilities in cases where the Postmaster-General and mail carrier cannot agree upon terms of such service, by referring the matter to the Court of Claims for decision, the service to be meanwhile continued as usual. The penalties prescribed for obstructions of mail facilities is a fine not exceeding $5,000, and imprisonment not exceeding one year if the offender is a person, and a fine not exceeding $5,000, or a forfeit of such conveyance for one year if a corporation. A railroad company is to be compelled to carry the mails for less compensation than is now established by law for the class to which it belongs.

A REPENTANT SECESSIONIST PARDONED.

The President has pardoned Mr. GINNEVA, one of the Arkansas delegation now here, who was a member of the convention which passed the ordinance for the secession of that State. The delegation will return to Arkansas this week, to arrange for calling a convention to bring back the State into the Union. Printed forms have been prepared by order of the President, to facilitate similar proceedings in other revolted States.

SECRETARY SEWARD'S RECEPTION.

Secretary SEWARD's reception, to-night, was one of the largest and most brilliant of the season. Many ladies, members of the Cabinet, and officers of the army and navy, were among the guests, together with Lord LYONS and the representatives of all the foreign Governments, including Hayti.

THE POST-OFFICE LAWS.

Representative LONGYEAR's bill to amend the Post-office laws contemplates allowing the interchange, free of postage, of legislative and executive documents and reports of judicial decisions by the Governors of States. It also proposes to allow free of postage the mailing of correspondence of Governors upon official business, and of all legislative documents directed to the President or heads of Executive Departments.

NOMINATIONS CONFIRMED.

In Executive Session to-day the Senate confirmed the following nominations: JOHN C. UNDERWOOD, Judge of the Union States District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia; R. S. FERRIS, Postmaster at San Francisco, vice PARKER, removed.

NEW NOMINATIONS.

The President to-day nominated CHARLES R. TRAIN, of Massachusetts, to be Assistant Adjutant-General, with the rank of Captain; CHARLES GERRY, to be a Captain in the navy; BENJAMIN W. WARNER and EDWARD E. FURBUSH, to be Lieutenants in the Reserve service.

PROCEEDINGS OF CONGRESS.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Monday, Jan. 25.

Mr. RICHARDSON appeared to-day for the first time.

NEW REPUBLICAN VICTORY.

Mr. DOOLITTLE, of Wisconsin, (Union,) presented the memorial of the Chamber of Commerce of Milwaukee, praying for such action as will secure a new treaty between Great Britain and the United States, on such principles of reciprocity as shall obviate the objections and inequalities of the present treaty. Referred to the Judiciary Committee.

DISLOYAL LAWYERS CANNOT PRACTICE IN COURTS.

SENATE COURTS.

Mr. SUMNER, of Massachusetts, (Union,) introduced a bill supplementary to an act entitled "An act to prescribe an oath of office and for other purposes," approved July 2, 1862." The amendment prohibits the admission to the Bar of the Supreme, District and Circuit Courts of the United States and Court of Claims, of persons who shall fail to take the oath prescribed in the act of 1862.

ELECTIONS IN KENTUCKY AND MISSOURI.

On motion of Mr. FESSENDEN, of Maine, (Rep.) the Secretary of War was directed to transmit to the Senate all orders or proclamations concerning elections, issued by military authority, in the States of Kentucky and Missouri.

OUR FORTIFICATIONS.

Mr. WILSON, of Massachusetts, (Union,) offered a resolution that the Committee on the Conduct of the War be instructed to inquire into the character and efficiency of the heavy ordnance now provided for the armament of fortifications, the amount of money paid and to whom for the use of a patent for the manufacture, the tests to which these arms are subjected when received into the service, the reasons for believing the tests satisfactory, the proportion of cast and land ordnance in use, when these guns were introduced, and the cause of the color peculiarly fleeting thereon.

NAVY DEPARTMENT.

On motion of Mr. HALE, his resolution asking for an investigation of the affairs of the Navy Department was referred to a select committee of three.

Mr. HALE gave in amendment of the naval appropriation of the Powers of Europe, Italy and Denmark. They amounted last year to $[illegible] 000; so that we were now called upon to spend one year more than the combined world, with the exception of Italy and Denmark. The naval expenses of England and France during the Crimean war amounted to $[illegible] for a period of three years and five months. We are called upon to spend $46,000,000 more per annum than this.

On motion of Mr. HALE, the matter was referred to a special select committee of three, with power to send for persons and papers.

THE OATH OF ALLEGIANCE.

On motion of Mr. SUMNER, the Senate proceeded to the consideration of the rule requiring Senators to take the oath.

Mr. SAULSBURY, of Delaware, (Dem.) remarked that the importance of the decision of the Senate did not depend upon any immediate result to follow, but from a consideration of those which might hereafter arise. If it was contended that the act of July 17, 1862, applied to Senators, and Senators contended it could convene of but one oath—that for the support of the measure has in view to its passage—the conclusion of the Senate now is reversed from your action in the Congress now in session. The decision of the Senate must be considered as the ruling disinclination, because to consider any other rule would be to aid in any manner the existing revolution, was to exclude these States from representation in Congress, and no other persons could properly represent the Constitution to show that the Senator was not an officer under the United States Government, but as a representative of a State in a body constituting a component branch of the Government, which body was part of the Government, and not a body under the Government. He called Madison on the nature and powers of the Government, and contended that the act of July 17, 1862, the proposed order, regarded the act of Congress as purely national, and not federal, which he contended was in reference to the practical construction of our federal system. MADISON thought the State Government would be a perfect security against the encroachment of Federal power. He (Saulsbury) came from a State that was faithful to defend the Federal Constitution. Without the Federal power it had been impossible to maintain the State of Delaware to-day may be the fate of Virginia. State sovereignty, State the Constitution be preserved, the rights of the people maintained, or shall they be subject to centralized Federal authority? This is the issue resulting from the developments of the present time. It is with the people themselves to decide. If they were worthy of their forefathers they will preserve their heritage.

Mr. SUMNER said this was not a question of the passage of the statute, but a question of the extreme heat of its provisions. Considering its stringency, he was surprised that so much discussion had ensued. He had predicted heretofore that the rebellion would be the statute. He would now read from Webster the meaning. Mr. B. proceeded at length to give a history of the passage of the law and to its application. There could be no two opinions about the necessity of such a rule. He argued that Senators were civil officers under the rule, as they were neither navy nor military.

Mr. DOOLITTLE, of Wisconsin, (Union,) agreed with the Senator from Vermont, (Foot) that there was no occasion for such action on the part of the Senate at the establishment of this rule.

Mr. JOHNSON recent services of them, and goes far as the furthest in crushing the rebellion and restore the authority of the Constitution in the seceded States. But he would not sacrifice the Senate, the interests and the lives of the loyal States in a war of subjugation. He would not sacrifice four or five millions of whites, because he believed it to be unnecessary in the case. Mr. DOOLITTLE concluded in support of the proposition, as unconstitutionality, propriety and inexpediency of the rule, in reply to the remarks of Messrs. CONKLING and SUMNER.

Mr. DOOLITTLE said the resolution of Mr. SUMNER would not affect Senator BAYARD, the chief object the former had in view. The Senator had already entered upon his duties; and if he was disqualified, the question of his expulsion could be raised on every vote he takes here. If the law was defective because it prescribed no form of oath, this body had no power to modify it. Had the Senate forgotten the case of Mr. BRODERICK, who was expelled for having written a letter to JEFFERSON DAVIS as President of the Confederate States of America. We have the power to expel traitors here without the establishment of this rule. Have we no confidence in ourselves or our successors? He had no fears that the leaders of the rebellion, with hands red with loyal blood would creep in here. When the military power of the rebellion was greatest—and he believed it would soon be—these leaders will call upon the rocks and mountains to hide them from the wrath of the people they have induced to their destruction. When the shocking shall fall home the people their leaders would fear them as they would the wrath to come. He believed there was a large mass of the Southern people who were forced into the rebellion by force of arms, who yearned for a return to loyalty and Union, and he would welcome them with open arms and heart, and he would have no mercy for those who, by the exercise of a despotic military power, had crushed them under a despotic yoke. In his State there was a Universalist preacher who, on occasions before the war, used to express a disbelief in the existence of a hell and future punishment. He went to the war as a Chaplain, and when he came home, in addressing the people, in speaking on this subject, he spoke of the crime of the leaders in the rebellion as greater than any ever committed on earth. He said, "Fellow Citizens, you know what my opinion was formerly; but now I have come to believe in a hell as a military necessity!" (Great laughter.) He would go so far as the furthest in punishing and execrating the leaders of the rebellion; and for the people

SLAVERY AND THE WAR.

Speech of Hon. Montgomery Blair on the Cause of the Rebellion, and in Support of the President's Plan of Pacification, Delivered Before the Members of the Legislature at Annapolis, Md., on Friday, January 22, 1864.

FELLOW-CITIZENS: The President's recent message manifests his continued solicitude for your interests. He says:

"The movements by State action for emancipation in several of the States not included in the emancipation proclamation are encouraging, and they should be followed by all those who have not already taken similar steps. While I do not retract in detail what I have heretofore formally urged upon this subject, my general views and wishes are unchanged, and I trust that Congress will embrace an opportunity of aiding those important steps to a peaceful consummation.

This is a renewed effort to redeem the pledge given in the emancipation proclamation and in a former message to Congress, to exert all his power to indemnify every loyal citizen for losses of slaves sustained from emancipation of the Government in prosecuting the war. The proclamation of amnesty promised in the late message extends the benefit of the indemnity proclamation previously to that white class once embarrassed in a similar manner. But that new absolution it must take the oath of loyalty and adhesion to the Constitution; the leaders of the rebellion only excepted. This is more than a pardon; not only does the President turn from fugitives of the most wicked dupes of conspirators, but he restores them, their property.

Another indulgence is granted by the late proclamation to the victims of the fraud and artifice, or what has been, for more prevalent, the heavily-handed military power at the controlers of the rebellion. It is the invitation to participate again as lawgivers in the Government on resuming relations of loyalty and peace.

A third advance looks to the perfect restoration of State rights in the Union, by extent of the loyal popular suffrage within the several States, thus restoring, with only constitutions as existing and obligatory in everything but in that feature which made the war, which was the very bar for the most part of Mississippi slavery. Even as to Slavery, its subjects are not, as the President says, brought into new relations with the Government, but are restored to the States, the President forbidding, by his proviso, "any provisions which may be adopted by such State government in relation to the freed people of such State which shall recognize and secure their permanent freedom, provide for their education, and which may yet be consistent as a temporary arrangement with their present condition as a laboring, laundrous and semi-slave class."

These clauses manifest a willingness to safe the changes in State constitutions relating to Slavery, which, but for resulting from it, have to be necessary to the people and States most affected. This harmonizes with the great principle on which the Government rests. If the President's benign and patriotic suggestions be received with favor by the loyal people, the government, bound up in the Union, and the Constitution, the grand, all-pervading principle of our Declaration of Independence, "that all men are free," shall be in all the world, that there is no human right power in our Constitution that can bear the worst slavery to which it might be subjected.

It is our duty now to put to shame the advocates of monarchy, oligarchy, and aristocracy. The monarch of a great free nation is invoked to relieve the great mass of his people from the condition of a common stock, or, as it is put another quarter, and the remaining portion has to be divided among our subjects. Thus did the oligarchs of Virginia and South Carolina become the largest slave producers in the world. Lady MARGARET provided for her dowry by the profits, but HARLEY (prime minister) who had good taste and an old family, then, as now, advised the assignment of her Majesty's portion of the stock to the South Sea Company.

Contrasting the trade in slaves, was cost nothing, but brought to have a salutary effect. England gained by the labor of the children of Africa, the sugar, tea, cotton, the capital which built up and confirmed a British empire in Hindostan. The political effects of this trade were equally perceptible in the West Indies. The most gentle system of which the whole colonial system was the outcome, "the commercial system of the slave-trade and in the commercial system of Spain, adopted with regard to the chief products of slave labor."

Here is the clue to the conspiracy of kings which made negro Slavery its talisman. It is a remarkable fact that the conspiracy of the slaveholders—the oligarchs in the South—against the free Government of the continent, originated in the same passion, avarice and ambition, looking to territorial conquest and political power, and negro Slavery was alike the instrument of both. No fact could more strongly elucidate the immense force which the absolute control of a system of Slavery, though wielded by the lowest caste of laborers, may exert over greater numbers of a middle order, and to concentration under a single will. The monopoly wrested by Queen ELIZABETH from Spain made the monarch of the latter kingdom dependent on the former, as a joint stockholder in the Slave trade with a company of her merchant princes, sharing their scandalous profits in a merchandise which was to debase the Spanish provinces into the subjection to such a master. And the historian tells us how the British throne, although its occupant did not appropriate the mercenary dividends of the Slave trade, contributed to herself, but gave them to her great trading companies, fostered through the guise of their monopolies the conquest they were entitled to achieve for England in India, Africa and the South Seas. Meantime the subject of these gains—the sale of the negroes in the American Colonies—was encouraged by the whole force of the parliamentary and royal authority and influence. All the efforts of the Colonies by legislative enactments or otherwise, to stop the establishment of the slave system, were vetoed by the King and public opinion was invented by declarations of Parliament that the trade is highly beneficial and advantageous to the Kingdom and the Colonies, and for that purpose, by statute, the ports of Africa were laid open to English competition. The statute expressly declaring that "the slave-trade is very advantageous to Great Britain" and the bench of Judges, HARDWICKE and POLLEXFEN, and eight other Judges, in pursuance of an order at council, giving their opinion that negroes are merchandise, and that therefore the act of navigation was to be extended to the English trade in them to the exclusion of aliens. The Crown encouraged the trade not only by orders to the colonial Governors such as "the royal instruction of Queen ANNE to the Governor of New-York and New-Jersey, to give due encouragement to merchants, and in particular to the Royal African Company of England," but by pensioners to merchants, and being given to emigrants "a condition that the trader should take four negroes for every hundred acres." South Carolina, even, as late as 1765, united to the common efforts of the colonists to stop the increase of Slavery, but BANCROFT says:

"Strong British influence came from the Scotch Ministry. Great Britain steadily opposed every colonial measure tending to the prohibition of the importation of slaves. The Governor, on both hands and the Crown, on the instruction of the Queen, vetoed the act of the Province, which was the result of the slave trade by the American Congress in 1776, the Earl of Dartmouth thus stated the tendency of the Colonies and the policy of England in addressing his Colonial agent these memorable words: "We think that the Colonies to check or discourage a trade so beneficial to the nation."

The result of this immense policy, building up a Slave Empire in the New World in furtherance of Great Britain's commercial interests, is thus summed up by BANCROFT:

"For the century preceding to the prohibition of the slave-trade by the American Congress in 1776, we assume the number imported by the English into the Spanish, French and English West Indies as well as the English continental colonies, to have been, collectively, nearly three millions, to which are to be added more than a quarter of a million purchased in Africa and thrown into the Atlantic on the passage. The gross returns to Europe from the trade in this number of slaves may have been not far from four hundred million dollars."

Well, what was Great Britain's commercial policy which Slavery as adjunct was to consummate? Mr. BANCROFT explains it in a paragraph based on documentary proof, in these words:

"The white race emigrating became a dangerous freeman. It was quite sure that the negroes of that century would never profess Republicanism; their presence in the colonies increased dependence. This reason was avowed by a British merchant in 1775, in a political tract entitled "THE UNION OF GREAT BRITAIN—THE GREAT PILLAR AND SUPPORT OF THE BRITISH PLANTATION TRADE IN AMERICA." Were it possible for white men to answer the toil of negroes in planting, (it is there contended,) our colonies would interfere with the manufactures of these kingdoms. In such a case, indeed, we might have just reason to dread the popularity of our colonies; but while we can supply them abundantly with negroes we need no such apprehension. Negro labor will keep our British colonies in due subserviency to the interest of their mother country; for while plantations depend only on planting by negroes, our colonies can never grow in interest to British manufactures, never become independent of their kingdom."

Such was the British policy as associated with Slavery. It is simple and consistent. The grand monopoly of the slave-trade increased its navigation, increased its commerce with Africa and its European dependencies in the two Americas, increased its planting and other agricultural interests everywhere; the negro labor being the work in the colonies, thus saying for home industry the peasantry of the British Isles that would otherwise emigrate and become dangerous freemen. This slave system thus rendered the growth of the distant plantations by that hardy Anglo-Saxon yeomanry which it was feared would soon acquire the independent spirit of the New World, that would endanger the supremacy of the mother country, rivaling her in arts, in arms, in commerce, and every species of enterprise.

The monopoly thus gained by merchants over Africa, glutted by the profits of the "merchandise" in the shape of men transplanted to America, inspired their ambition to extend it over the East Indies. There the result was the conquest of Hindostan by the "military, corruption, commercial forgeries, sanctioned by treaties entered into with the native princes, and upheld by the diplomacy and arms of England; a monopoly which steadily excluded from the East India possessions white emigrants—a policy also adopted by our Southern slaveholders.

This was the uniting attitude of England's slave policy when the Congress of the Colonies passed the act of prohibition in 1776, and JEFFERSON and his compeers characterized it in the Declaration of Independence with stronger terms of reproach against King George than any other in the category of wrongs—that long list of "repeated injuries and usurpations all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute tyranny over these States."

Is it not amazing that the Slave States, having up to the hour of pronounced independence made war on the Slave trade and the power that compelled submission to its aggravated mischiefs, should recoil from its emancipation in that great State paper written expressly to sum up the grievances suffered under the Government? It was designed to renounce as the only mode of deliverance from them? No sooner was the paper read than South Carolina and Georgia, then, or more recently, instinctively the promptings of the nation at bay when a question of life or liberty is involved, objected to the scathing charge—and why? A change came o'er the spirit of their dream. When the slave trade and Slavery were instruments in the hands of the King, they saw them piled on a vast monopoly to amass wealth and power for those having the control, and to reduce to dependence those who were obliged to buy and live under the monopoly. The inhabitants of continents and the markets of continents were under its sway. Slavery and the slave-trade under the management of a foreign Power was a curse, but under the management of the masters of South Carolina and Georgia, promised much to avarice and ambition. The whole South soon perceived that an oligarchy of slaveholders could easily persuade the King and profit by the lessons of the monopoly be established. How well they have applied and improved upon the paperoonis of the royal master to which we have adverted, a glance at these scenes after they had exposed from our Magna Charta the passage provided to insure the extinction of the slave-trade and Slavery, will show.

The first step of the Slaveholders, after assuming the royal prerogative in reference to Slavery, was the demand to set aside the Congressional interdict against the Slave-trade. This was enforced by threats of dissolving the Union, necessary to the establishment of our free infant institutions. A new lease had to be granted to the slave-trade to save the Government from rebellion at its birth. Their next requisition was that the political power over free men and free institutions should be compounded with their domestic institution, asserting arbitrary authority over the African slaves among us. This, too, was conceded as the price of unity and peace. The slave power acquired a constitutional right to representation in Congress for two-fifths of the persons it held in bondage. Thus endowed with the new political faculty of importing and breeding a population to legislate for the nation, the master-class in the South readily asserted the character of a privileged class. The capitalists, monopolizing the lands and the labor adequate to their cultivation, at once reduced the poor slaveholders to entire dependence upon them. They became tenants-at-will on the great domain of the privileged order, and although indulged with the right of suffrage, in effect it was but a choice between individuals of the same order, the invariable result being the election of all the higher functionaries, and the legislators, State and national, from that class which having command of the labor and land of the South, had also command of the votes of those who held their livings of them. Hence, the State and congressional representation of the South really represented the class consisting of some three hundred thousand persons, whose interests required that the seven millions of the whites, equally dependent upon them, but less closely allied upon mercenary considerations than the four millions of the black caste, should, for security and convenience, be held under the same law of passive obedience. With great art and success the two Southern castes of laborers have been played off against each other for this purpose, and with like skill the Southern chivalry, acting in concert upon the instinct of cemented interest, have, though a minority, by holding the balance of power between the two great parties of the free States, contrived to carry their plans for control in the nationals as well as the State Governments.

The ambition of feeding a vast domain—the spirit of all despotism for aggrandisement—soon succeeded to the indulgence of the slave-owners in the prerogative which had again and again been denied to the King by acts of local legislation—that of filling the country with slaves. It was at the threshold insisted that the whole territory south of Ohio should be resigned to slavery. The acquisition of Louisiana was its next conquest; then Florida and Texas followed; and when part of Mexico, where Slavery had been abolished, was annexed, the Union was put in hazard to compel the restoration of this royal institution to hold that wide region in abeyance for settlement by the masters of the South. California, although knocking at the door of Congress with her free Constitution in her hand, was denied admittance but on a compromise making the rest of the Mexican acquisition accessible to Slavery. This struggle for territory on the part of the privileged proprietaries of the institution was not to obtain room for its occupation. Vast regions were already held vacant by the black laborers, that like the dog in the manger could not use that from which it excluded the only species of emigration that could be relied on to turn it to account.

But the privileged order of chivalry had an political considerations an eagerness for expansion that was insatiable. The paucity of their numbers rendered it necessary that extensive spaces should be consecrated to Slavery, to make States with sparse populations to create Senators, and to put distance between the species of emigration they cherished and that of the intelligent free race that threatened the power that reposed upon it. The battle which this power had fought for Missouri and won, resulting in a pacification fixing a northern limit beyond which Slavery was not to pass, although for a quarter of a century exulted in as a Slavery triumph, securing all that was desirable to the South, became a mortification when Kansas was opened up to emigration preparatory to admission into the Union. It presented another temptation like that of Missouri to the spirit of Southern ascendency. The Missouri compact which excluded Slavery from Kansas, was violated under the corrupt influence exerted through bargains for the Presidency with PIERCE and BUCHANAN—successively the candidates nominated and elected by the management of the chivalry for the purpose of its surrender. The strategy failed. The South was defeated in the war it waged for Kansas. It was defeated notwithstanding official frauds and perjuries were perpetrated in aid of violence to secure its submission, and although the schemes were assisted by all the art and influence of the two perfidious Presidents engaged to effect it.

It was this first repulse to the ambition of that privileged order, by long indulgence made arrogant, followed by the election of President LINCOLN, pledged to resist the further encroachment of Slavery in territory where freedom was established, that hurried into birth the long-hatched-over revolt against the Republic. Mr. BUCHANAN's nomination to the Presidency had been obtained from the South by the solemn pledge, made in his name by his Attorney-General, Mr. BLACK, to the Southern delegation in convention.

"Whither thou goest, I will go; where thou lodgest, I will lodge; thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God."

The conspiracy against the Union was well underlined by Mr. BUCHANAN long before this vow was made to its principal authors. Its decisive overt act, in violation of the Missouri compact and the seizure of Kansas, was then begun, and this Republican administration was to mark, with signal force, his election to the treason; and he was not forced false to this fellowship. His whole term in the Presidency rendered the Government of Republican character a mere nullity. Their most unscrupulous agents were made heads of departments, and when war was openly proclaimed by the cities of Charleston and Sumter, and trailing the flag of the country in the dust and mire, was found that the Free States of the Union had been disarmed, its navy dispersed in distant seas, the officers of the army corrupted to surrender themselves and its fort South filled with munitions of war withdrawn from the loyal section, and the forts, ports, custom-houses all opened up to the conspirators, who had prepared in secrecy, under the Knighthood of the Golden Circle, a force to take possession of them, and, at the same time, the State Governments to supplement by a military jurisdiction that of the United States over the whole Southern region which the nation had conducted from Great Britain and purchased from France and Spain. Mr. BUCHANAN, to prove his faith to his allies, who thus triumphed through his perfidy over the Government, gave them, in his last message to Congress, most efficient "aid and comfort," enforcing, by executive authority, the dicum that the United States had no constitutional power to "coerce" the restoration of the rights or property of which it had been stripped. And he remained faithful to them to the end. After the retirement of Gen. CASS from the Cabinet, who withdrew because he considered the refusal on the part of the President and his Cabinet to "maintain Fort Sumter against the rebels an overact of treason, an agreement was entered into with the enemy in furtherance of the object of that treason. BUCHANAN's administration stipulated with that of DAVIS for an armistice which afforded time to the latter to accomplish his design, and this was officially signed by the respective Secretaries on the part of the contracting Cabinets. But this betrayal by the Executive of the United States would have produced a short-lived success had it not been supported by the two standing armies kept on hand by the chivalry of the South—armies that are the offspring of that peculiar institution to which the order itself owes its birth. The antagonism of the black and white castes of laborers of the South creates the double circle which maintains the oligarchy over both. The antipathies between the Papists and Protestants of Ireland is the strength of the English viceroyalty over the island. The apprehensions of negro equality on the part of the non-slaveholders renders them functionally devoted to the designs of that class whose ambition and mercenary interests proclaim a war to prevent the emancipation feared as a transformation, elevating the blacks and degrading the whites. The slaves, disinclined to obedience, and in the presence of a soldiery composed of that stern class that held the lash over them from infancy, and now armed for their destruction on a hesitating look, make an embodied force as stout, acclimated, skillful pioneers, willing though unpaid, and proud of the change from the fields of the plantation to those of the camp. These are the men that threw up the batteries that struck the colors of Fort Sumter, the men who dug the rifle-pits and made and partly manned the redoubts which broke the first army at Bull Run, the men that erected the fortifications at Richmond, Charleston, Savannah, Mobile, Port Hudson, Vicksburgh. They constitute the army of the trenches, while every man of their brethren left in the crops at home sends and supports a white substitute to fight the battles in the field. Can any one deny the share the negro has in creating the armies of the South, when it is known that the military government there has ordered grain to be cultivated there as the exclusive crop, and has conscripted the slaves of the plantery to work under military overseers when the owner has refused the office, and that, nevertheless, famine stakes their sentences in the face? But for the slaves everywhere pressed to provide against these delicate supplies, the ranks of the rebel army would be thinned to make bread for the families at home and the remnant of their comrades. It was even the boast of the nullifiers in the early time of their intimidation that their institutions, like the Spartans', enabled them to make every freeman a soldier.

Slavery was thus to become the sure foundation of their Republic, and it is, we see, the basis of the despotic military rule which subjects the South under a dictator, and sheds the blood of the North in torrents to defend itself and the whole Union against the frenzied ambition of the chivalry that hoped to make cotton king over the Cabinets of Europe, and the negro institution the throne of a king over half Continent. It was in this spirit that it sent out its Alibiers into Cuba, in Central America, and sought an alliance with a revolutionary party in Mexico to restore the reign of Slavery in that Republic. It was in this view that TOOMBS, who spoke the orphery at MIRAMBEAU, in convulsing the South, announced that it would make "the Gulf of Mexico its mare clausum," and "unfurl the roll of its slaves on Bunker Hill." The maniac is now tortured, but if he had broken our army at Antietam or Gettysburg, could our unarmed farmers and citizens have arrested him on his way to Philadelphia, Baltimore, and New-York, with an army flushed with victory and bearing the arms and spoils of ours? Might he not have bribed mobs like that which held our emporium for three days in terror, to take the arms won from in the fields of battle and join him in the plunder and conflagration of our cities?

I have not made this recapitulation of the causes originating and the consequences flowing from the bloody rebellion that shakes our country, to imbitter animosities on either side. My effort is to expose to view that rooted evil which must be extracted if we would relieve the nation from its convulsions. Slavery, as a great element of society, makes slaves of all associated with it by the passions it inflames; the masters by the ambition it inspires, the masses with which it mingles by the deadly contagion it spreads in a thousand forms. It is marked in the Declaration of Independence as the most virulent poison instilled by the King to enfeeble for subjugation the people on whom he made war, and it has proved the most potent ingredient that could be employed for the dissolution of the fabric of free government which withstood the King's attempt. If the venom he infused, which was strong enough amid the enthusiasm for new-born freedom to stifle the voice of the Declaration of Independence denouncing Slavery, and has kept the free Government—the hard-earned prize of the revolutionary war—in tremor ever since, is it now, when it has been poured out with the nation's blood in the fratricidal war it forced on the country, again to be admitted into the system?

What patriotic party will sanction such a suggestion? The people of the Slave States will repudiate Slavery when the duress of the rebellion is removed. Missouri and Western Virginia have already formally renounced it, and the recent votes of Delaware and our own dear Maryland manifest their purpose to renounce it at once. In Kentucky, Tennessee and Arkansas, the indications are also favorable. The Proclamation of the President deprives the enemy of this greatest element of power, this sinew of war exerted at all points, has announced the extinction of Slavery as essential to the success of the measures he has been compelled to adopt to conquer a peace for the Union. The armies of the Republic are on the march to accomplish the aims which have been submitted without reserve to the decision of public opinion, and they have the support of the people's suffrage. What, then, is the duty of all who are sensible that the war is an inevitable evil, from which there is no safe or honorable deliverance but by supporting with united strength and counsels the Chief Magistrate, to whose conduct the issue is committed, and to whose avowed designs the nation has voted its confidence? Are there any who would recind the votes of the Border States and reestablish Slavery therein? Are there any who would annul the proclamation to reinvigorate the institution so skillfully plied to instigate the war, and so essential to provide the means for its prosecution?

The Democratic party of the North was seduced to countenance the measures of the Southern oligarchs preparatory to the war against the Union, under the idea that they were designed as mere menace, and were really Conservative. The event has shown that the whole policy of the dominant class in the South has been war for absolute dominion in the Slave States—war to extend the despotic system on which it is built at home and abroad. Is this the conversation to which Democracy anywhere should lend itself? BURKE, though a Tory, has this aphorism in one of his late papers: "A true conservative policy for a nation is the policy of progress;" and he gives his conservative friends the admonition that "resistance to progress is destructive to conservatism." The Democracy was in its better day a progressive party. Would it not be an advance backward to restore the slave institution to the position it has lost in being used during the greater part of a century, correctly at first, but now in open rebellion, to destroy the Republic for which it was created, which tolerated only in the hope it would have been gradually thrown off under the influence of public sentiment? When the masters of millions of slaves have boldly proclaimed Slavery the best basis of government, and founded on it the military despotism they have set up within the jurisdiction of the United States, with the avowed purpose of superseding its authority, what friend of the Union, what friend of free Government, can hesitate to strike down that system which endangers both? The plea that Slavery is a local institution, not to be dealt with by Federal authority, was universally admitted to be true till that institution engendered a rebellion which, by an admission equally universal, seriously imperils the existence of the National Government. It could not be called a Government, if in virtue of the right of self-defence, common alike to Governments and individuals, under such circumstances it could not not destroy its enemies. It is absurd to consider the war now raging as one meant to draw a line between coterminous nationalities. It is a war in the bosom of one nationality, of a people of the same race and language, on an area bounded by the lakes, the ocean, the Gulf, and the great tributary streams that unite and insulate and mark it as the domain of one great Government. It is a war of principle and for dominion. If the dynasty founded on the slave system triumphs, it will give law to the continent. If it fails, as fail it must, unless the tendency of the age becomes inverted, there is an end of Slavery among civilized nations. What a humiliating contrast is presented for the new world in the attempt of JEFFERSON DAVIS and his coadjutor rebels striving to fetter their poorer and more ignorant fellow-citizens in the chains of their—four millions of negro slaves; while the Autocrat of the Russias proclaims the freedom of forty millions of serfs, delivering them from the yoke of a haughty nobility and his own right of seignitory, and establishing them as freeholders!

Our would-be nobility of slave creation has thrown down the gage of battle for the slave system against the free system of government. When the batteries at Charleston poured their hot shot into the fortress built and armed and manned by the nation, it was that the true Democracy leveled the cannon and shot into pieces the rebel ship, and, when the nation's flag was fired on, it was at the call of the Democracy that the militia came to vindicate the nationality founded by our forefathers to secure the liberties for which our ancestors had fought and conquered. The Democracy fraternized in arms with the Republicans, in whose hands the elections responsed the Administration, defended the cause of freedom and the Union. The Democracy took away the conflict to which this act devoted the country in its true aspect. Every step in its progress proves that it is a war waged for military supremacy on the part of the assailants—for the liberty and nationality it secures on the other. Foreign kings and emperors are invoked to join with the conspirators in making a wreck of the Republic, and share in the advantages to be derived from its ruin. Piratical banners the flag of the rebellion, and fitted out under the auspices of wealthy speculators, looking for remuneration in the plunder of our commerce, disgrace the civilization of the age by robbery and conflagrations on the high seas. In such a war—a war for freedom on the hand and Slavery on the other—no permanent peace can be patched up. To endure, there must be submission to the Government as constituted by our fathers, or as it would be constituted by Mr. DAVIS and his military adherents. Any compromise or partition treaty would give but a breathing spell for fresh preparations for renewed struggle.

May we not hope, as there is no escape from an issue so forced upon us, that the Democracy of the North will, as at the threshold of the war, be found with the great majority of the constituency of the loyal States, zealously battling for the right, which every patriot of whatever party holds to be with the Government of the Union? It has taken the stand that the extinction of the slave institution is essential to save the Union and perpetuate the Government which it has put in jeopardy. The armies of the Union fight to make prisoner this giant of the war on the side of our adversaries. Once withdraws from them, he takes from them the motives and the means of continuing the conflict.

The partisan who may thwart the brave men that risk their lives in battling for a consummation alike patriotic and humane will, on the return of the maimed veterans to their homes, covered with laurels and honorable scars, hide his diminished head in obscurity forever.

In contests of opinion between parties, the utmost virulence of expression is soon forgiven and forgotten. But when war strikes the country, the man who withholds support to the soldiers who offer their lives in its defence, or disables their efforts by words or acts favoring the cause of the enemy, never recovers its confidence. What was the fate of the patriots who took sides with England in the war of the Revolution or that of 1812?

The political convulsion of 1798-99, ending in the election of Mr. JEFFERSON, was characterized by more bitterness, with a party frenzy more intense than when blood flowed in battles on the field. But the ill spirit vanished like the spectre of a morning's dream when Mr. JEFFERSON rose to the nation's chief honor, and the country was relieved of the opprobrious slons of the loss of the election made by the people. The struggle had been on one side to consolidate the Federal power, and by construction give it the tone and tendency of the British Government; on the other, to assert State rights and popular sovereignty by strict adherence to the republican model presented in the Constitution. This fairly construed, embraced the opinions of both contending parties. They were reconciled in the admirable inaugural address which allayed partisan fury in its assertion of what was true of the great body of the people: "We are all REPUBLICANS—all FEDERALS." It may be truly said now, speaking the sense of the masses of our countrymen, "WE ARE ALL REPUBLICANS—all Democrats." Exclude the conspirators and the slave institution, which they have shaped into a grint to split the Union; exclude the conspirators and those whom Slavery has made their slaves, and our countrymen are at this moment "all Democrats—all Republicans"—asserting popular sovereignty, the right of self-government, the rights of the States, the nationality of the Union, all defined, balanced, checked, and bound together in the republican form of government inherited from our fathers.

GENERAL CITY NEWS.

MOVEMENT TO RAISE WAGES OF MATES OF VESSELS.—A meeting of ship-mates was called, last evening, at No. 277 South-street, to consider the question of raising their wages. But few persons were present, but some intelligent first officers made statements to our reporter, which have interest as showing that the general movement for larger wages is spreading among the seamen. It appears that first mates now receive the same pay as during eight or ten years past—i. e., on packets, from $40 to $45 a month, while the seamen very often get larger wages by getting $60 or $70 in addition to their wages of $30 a month, just leaving the ship at the end of their run. Mates also find their current rate of pay insufficient for the decent support of a family, almost all articles of common consumption having risen from 30 to 50 per cent., and some much more.

DEATH FROM A POLICEMAN'S CLUB.—Coroner WILDEY, yesterday, held an inquest on the body of DENNIS LYONS, an Irish laborer, residing at No. 10 Mulberry-street, who died on Sunday evening last from the effects of violence inflicted by Officer GEORGE GRASSICK, of the Sixth Precinct. The testimony showed that a few nights since the above-named officer, while on duty in Mulberry-street, saw a crowd and another man abusing a little girl. The official remonstrated, and made an effort to arrest the parties. Lyons resisted, and the officer was compelled to resort to the "locust." The result was a severe fracture of the skull, from the effects of which Lyons died soon after.

THE AFRICAN CIVILIZATION SOCIETY.—As will be seen by a card in another column, Rev. Dr. HOWARD CROSBY has consented to receive funds for this Society to be appropriated in establishing schools among the colored people of the District of Columbia, as well as in other parts of the South occupied by our armies. A school was established yesterday, in Washington, by Rev. Messrs. CAIN, HINTON and HARDY, and it is expected that six or seven in all will be established in other parts of the District of Columbia, if the funds requisite can be procured.

RIVER ITEMS.—Yesterday the steam tug Georges Wotten came in collision with the schooner Helen, which was lying at anchor in the East River. No considerable damage was done to either vessel.... Work on the ship W. S. Lindsay has been abandoned, and a survey is to be held.... The Italian iron-clad, Re d'Italia, has been fully repaired, and is now lying at her dock in Brooklyn, whence she will sail in a few days on her final trial trip.

NAVIGATION.—Until within the last three days navigation on the North and East Rivers, in their near approach to this City, has been seriously impeded by ice, so much so, that it was expected the Sound steamers would be withdrawn. The recent favorable weather has made any inconvenience the public might suffer from in this respect no longer to be feared.

THE FENIAN BROTHERHOOD FAIR AT CHICAGO.—A great Irish-American Fair, for the benefit of the Fenian Brotherhood, will be held at Chicago, on the 28th of March next. MICHAEL SCANLAN, Esq., is now in this City to obtain subscriptions for this fair, which it is thought, will be one of the most extensive ever held in our Western cities.

FURTHER ACCOMMODATION FOR TROOPS.—Major-Gen. DIX yesterday issued orders for the erection of barracks on Willard's Point for the accommodation of 2,000 troops. These quarters are intended for the use of soldiers in transit to and from the seat of war.

The Kohnstain Frauds.

SUPERIOR COURT—GENERAL TERM.

Before Justice Barbour.

Emil Von Schoening vs. Solomon Kohnstein.—The plaintiff in this case had a claim against the Government for furnishing board and lodgings to the amount of $—— to the Fifty-second New-York Volunteers. This claim he placed in the hands of the defendant to collect, as his agent. He alleges that the defendant collected the claim, and that he has never accounted to him for any of it. The defendant denies the allegations of the complaint. This is one of the alleged fraudulent claims for collecting which Kohnstein has been arrested by the United States authorities. Case still on. Gilbert, Dean and J. J. Marbury, for defendant; J. K. Bryan, for plaintiff.

The Express Case.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS—TRIAL TERM.

Before Judge Daly.

Stephen T. Clark vs. James Brooks and Erastus Brooks.—This case was called on the regular Calendar for trial yesterday morning. Mr. Smyth, one of the counsel for the defendants, moved that it be postponed, on account of the absence of material witnesses on the case, Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt and others, who were in Chicago, and that he would decide it in the course of the day.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

Additional dispatches from Chattanooga confirm the reports of large desertions from the rebel service. It is said that the proposition to conscript the rebel soldiers now in the army is causing them to desert in heavy numbers. Forty-six came in on the 21st, in one squad. One division of rebels has gone to reinforce Mobile. At Louisville, rumors prevail of an intended rebel raid into East Kentucky.

A dispatch from Quebec announces the arrival there of the notorious Marshal KANE, of Baltimore, and several other rebels, who had escaped from Johnson's Island, Camp Douglas. It is supposed that their escape has not been announced before.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate Mr. SUMNER introduced a bill, complementary to the act of 1863, requiring all persons admitted to practice at the bars of the United States Courts, to take the oath of allegiance. Mr. WILSON offered a resolution reviving the Committee on the Conduct of the War to inquire into the character and efficiency of the heavy ordnance now provided for the armament of fortifications. On motion of Mr. HALE, his resolution asking for an investigation of affairs in the Navy Department, was referred to a Select Committee of three—Messrs. HALE, GRIMES and BUCKALEW. In the course of his remarks Mr. HALE said that the combined naval expenditures for the past year of all the Powers of Europe save Italy and Denmark, were but $126,000,000, and that the combined naval expenses of France and England, during the Crimean war of three and a half years, were $356,000,000. The oath of allegiance was then taken up, and Mr. SAULSBURY, of Delaware, delivered a speech in opposition thereto. Messrs. DOOLITTLE and SUMNER likewise opposed it. But the Senate passed the resolution by a vote of 27 Ayes to 11 Noes. The Senate, after an Executive session, adjourned.

In the House yesterday a bill was introduced to authorize the establishment of a navy-yard and depot in Western waters. Mr. KENNEY, delegate from Utah, introduced a bill to enable that Territory to form a State Government. Mr. DAWES, from the Committee on Elections, reported against the claims of Messrs. FLELD, of Louisiana, and SHEAR, of Virginia. The Judiciary Committee were instructed to inquire into the expediency of organizing a new Department of the Government, to be called the "Department of Industry"—to include several bureaus—of agriculture, freedmen's affairs, mines and mineral lands, colonization and immigration, &c. A resolution was offered instructing the Committee on Military Affairs to inquire into the expediency of increasing the pay of soldiers. Resolution lies over. Several political resolutions were introduced and laid over. The bill reviving the grade of Lieutenant-General was reported back with an amendment. The bill authorizes the President to confer it upon any commander, with rank not below Major-General, most distinguished for skill, courage and ability, and such officer, being commissioned, shall command the armies of the United States. The bill was postponed until Monday next. The Senate bill amending the Enrollment Act was reported from the Military Committee and referred to the Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union. The House then took up the Deficiency bill. During the discussion some spicy passages occurred between the real and the pretended Union members from Kentucky, in which the former took a most loyal and gratifying stand for the Government. Without concluding, the House adjourned.

STATE LEGISLATURE.

In the Senate, yesterday, very little business was done. Bills were introduced amending the Brooklyn Water act, and the charters of the Lebanon Springs Railroad Company, and the City of Poughkeepsie. Bills were reported incorporating the Brooklyn Yacht Club, and authorizing the City of Syracuse to borrow money.

In the Assembly, a bill was noticed proposing to increase the salaries of the New-York Aldermen and Councilmen to $2,000 per annum. A bill was introduced looking to the better protection of seamen in the port of New-York. The bill prohibits boarding-house keepers and their agents from boarding vessels, and requires them to pay a license fee of $20 per year. The bill directing the payment of the mortgages on the Quarantine lands, so that the State can give a clear title to the same, was ordered to a third reading.

FROM EUROPE.

At Halifax, we have received three days' later news from Europe, brought by the steamship Canada, which left Liverpool on the 9th instant, and Queenstown on the 10th. From Great Britain we have intelligence of the birth of a son to the Prince of Wales, and of the favorable condition of the mother and infant. Judgment was to have been delivered in the case of the Alexandra on the 11th instant. The project of discussing of the steamship Great Eastern by lottery at Frankfort was not likely to be carried out, the Frankfort Senate having refused to authorize the drawing. Dr. Temple, Bishop of Ely, died on the 7th inst. From France we hear of the discovery in Paris of a conspiracy on the part of four Italians, whose object is not told. The conspirators were arrested, and at their residence were found a quantity of gunpowder, poignards, revolvers, air-guns, and eight hand-grenades of the Orsini pattern. The Schleswig-Holstein question continues to wear a threatening aspect, and both sides were active in military preparations. It is reported that the Federal force in and upon the borders of Holstein numbered 60,000, and would soon reach 100,000. It was stated that Prince Augustenburg intended to declare Kiel a free port. The British Government had addressed a fourth note to the Federal Diet, urging a conference, and, upon the plea of protecting British interests, had dispatched a fleet of war vessels to the German waters. The Times regards the military question of the campaign in Schleswig as almost certain within a short time. The new ship George H. Warren, of Boston, was lost on her first voyage to Liverpool, by running ashore on the Irish coast.

COMMERCIAL NEWS.

The Board of Councilmen met yesterday. A message was received from Mayor GUNTHER tendering his resignation, stating that the compensation of the City officers in the City has been exceeded by 12½. He recommends that application be made for a law legalizing all the acts of the Commissioners of Deeds serving, since the number of them has exceeded 500. The Mayor prefaces his objections by saying that the resolution "is returned for the reconsideration of your Honorable Body. I have been advised by the Counsel to the Corporation, that there was doubts whether the appointment of these officers was a legislative act on the part of the Common Council, but that the magnitude of the interests involved in the regularity of proceedings before them, and the uniform course hitherto taken, made it expedient that I should take action in reference thereto." The law says the Common Council shall appoint, and the charter says all proceedings of the Common Council shall be by act, ordinance or resolution, and the Mayor is given the veto power over all their acts. By making objections to the resolution, the Mayor's communication is a veto on it, although he says he returns it for "reconsideration." The veto probably will be overruled. The Comptroller reported a balance of $2,771,553 20 in the City Treasury on last Saturday. The Board adjourned to 1 o'clock P. M. on Thursday.

There was a large meeting in Nashville on the evening of the 22d, to consult on the restoration of the civil government in the State. Over 2,000 persons were in attendance. Resolutions were passed recognizing the authority of the National Government to secure a Republican Government in the rebellious States, by appointing military Governors; denouncing Slavery as an evil in itself, and as the cause of the rebellion; advising the reorganization of the State Government by a Constitutional Convention composed of delegates pledged to immediate and universal emancipation. The resolutions commend the integrity and fidelity of Gov. JOHNSON, and request him to call such a Convention. A Committee was appointed to select delegates to the Southern Free State Convention in Louisville. Governor JOHNSON made a powerful speech forenear two hours. He took strong grounds in favor of the speedy abolition of Slavery and the restoration of Tennessee as a Free State.

A dispatch, dated at Chattanooga January 23, reports that deserters say that JOHN MORGAN has arrived at Atlanta, and will start up a brigade composed of the Second Kentucky and Third Alabama regiments, cavalry and mounted infantry, to cut the Chattanooga Railroad. MORGAN made a speech at the Washington Hotel, declaring that the Yankee army must evacuate Chattanooga. The rebel Gen. WHEELER is on the eve of a raid. It is believed he will turn in the direction of Loudon and Knoxville. A body of rebel cavalry dashed into Lafayette a few days ago and conscripted fifty-two men, among whom were two eighty years of age. Parson BROWNLOW's brother, who lay in a Tuscaloosa dungeon until his finger and toe nails rotted off, has again been captured. He was in Federal uniform. On the 30th inst. a fight took place near Russellville. A large rebel force attacked an Ohio regiment on picket, killing Adj. SMITH and four men, wounding fourteen, and then drove the regiment to Blain's Cross Roads. We lost one piece of artillery. Gens. GRANT and BUTTERFIELD arrived at Chattanooga on the 23d.

Lieut.-Col. BENEDICT, of the Fourth regiment Infantry, Corps d'Afrique, at Fort Jackson, La., writes a letter to the Evening Post, denying all the charges of harsh and unnecessarily severe conduct attributed to him as the cause of the recent mutiny among the colored troops at that place. He says his treatment was only a slight whipping of two drummer boys, who violated every rule of camp discipline. Col. DREW, the superior officer of Lieut.-Col. B., indorses the latter's statement.

The Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger thinks it probable that recent events in Mexico, taken in conjunction with the probable early departure of MAXIMILIAN for his kingdom, will secure the recognition of the new state of affairs by our Government.

Official information has been received from Hon. R. D. CULVER, United States Minister at Caracas, announcing the death at Laguayra, Venezuela, of United States Consul Col. ELIAS WAMPOLE.

The Potomac River, which was frozen up at Washington, is again open, and navigation of the river has been resumed.

The Stock speculation on the Railway list fell off, yesterday afternoon, from 1 to 3 ⅌ cent. The Government securities were firm. Money about the same as on Saturday, 7 to 12 ⅌ cent. to the Brokers. Gold and Exchange 1 ⅌ cent. up from Saturday.

Flour was in fair demand and firmer yesterday. Wheat was brisker and dearer. Corn was dull and heavy. Provisions were depressed; hog products were generally declining. Rio Coffee, Tallow, Hides, and Fish-Oils were more sought after. Whisky was dull and nominal. Freights were more active.

The cattle-yards at Forty-fourth-street were filled with about 3,500 beeves yesterday, besides a few sold on Friday and Saturday. Trade was quite animated in the morning, but dull, in the afternoon. Quality and prices had a wide range, but there was an advance from last week of about ½c. ⅌ lb. Large numbers of fat steers brought 13c. ⅌ lb. for the estimated beef, while one car load of extra fat cattle were wholesaled at near 14c. Common cattle were too plenty for quick sales or much advance in price.

Rebel Designs in East Tennessee.

The news from Tennessee seems to indicate that a desperate attempt is about to be made by the rebels, during the coming month, to take advantage of the supposed reduction of our forces, by the furloughs granted to the veteran regiments reenlisting, and to regain some of their lost ground in Tennessee. There seems to be little question that advantage has been taken of the lull in the operations in Virginia and at Chattanooga to reinforce LONGSTREET heavily for another attack on Knoxville, and MORGAN is to cooperate in the movement by a raid on the communications of the latter place, both with Chattanooga and with the West, by way of Cumberland Gap. Knoxville lost, it is hardly necessary to say that our position at Chattanooga would become in the highest degree precarious, to say nothing of the waste of the brilliant and cheaply-bought triumphs by which Gen. BURNSIDE acquired possession of the place last Summer.

It is to be hoped, therefore, that nothing will be left undone to prevent any calamity in East Tennessee. The effect of a disaster there at this moment, upon our affairs both at home and abroad, would be in the highest degree unfortunate. Every time we are repulsed or forced to retrograde, it is not merely the loss in men and territory that we have to regret, but the stimulus that is thereby given to the hopes of the rebel population at home, and to the support that is sent to them from abroad. They have long ceased to hope that they could defeat us, or overrun the North. That was one of the wild dreams which the first month of fighting dispelled. What they do hope, and the only thing they have hoped for a long time, is that they can so delay us in our work of conquest, that we shall be worn out before we achieve it. Every repulse inflicted on us, even though it be by no means a decisive victory, assists in this, merely by lengthening out our operations. The loss of the battle of Cickamauga added three or four months to the length of the campaign in Tennessee, and left us unquestionably, even at the end of that period, less advanced than we should have been if it had either been won or had never been fought. The loss of Knoxville would probably mean the absorption of the most reckless months of next Spring in its recapture, provided we with the work on which we now hope to enter as soon as the campaign opens, still untouched. The loss of a few months may seem to many persons a small matter, and there was a time when it was so; but that time is passed. Delay is now telling against us almost as heavily as defeat. Our debt has reached a point at which every million that is added to it begins to press; and millions are being added to it, we need hardly say, in an increasing ratio. So that putting aside the loss of life, it is strategically almost as bad for us to lose a month as lose a battle.

These considerations, too, keep up the rebel credit abroad, facilitate the creation of companies and purchase of steamers for the purpose of running the blockade, and intensify the eagerness of the cotton speculators. The popular notion in Europe, whether true or false, is that there is in the interior of the South large stores of cotton which will eventually be got at if the South can only hold out long enough to wear out the North; and those who are investing money in the rebellion do so in the faith that this is possible; and this faith is confirmed every time we recede, let it be for ever so short a period, from any position we have once occupied. It would, as far as the effect on public opinion in the South or in Europe is concerned, have been better, for these reasons, that we should never have seized any point without any absolute certainty of holding it, or, at all events, the stern determination to hold it at any cost. We have no doubt this determination is felt by the authorities with regard to the position in East Tennessee, but the determination is not of much value without the diligent and careful provision of the means. So we hope that no such weakening of our forces in that region has or will be permitted as is likely to give LONGSTREET, however reinforced, even a temporary success. To get all we can and keep what we get, is now not only our great duty, but has become a stern necessity.

Rebel Enlistments in England.

One of the strongest points against England, in the case of the Alabama, has been the fact that she was not only built by English workmen and with English money, but that she was manned with an English crew, recruited in England by rebel agents, for the very purpose of preying upon our commerce. This point has been repeatedly pressed by Mr. ADAMS throughout his correspondence with Earl RUSSELL, and that it was manifestly felt and found a difficult one to get over, is plain from the fact that it is not alluded to in Earl RUSSELL's letter of Dec. 19, 1862, in which the English side of the case is argued very fully. He meets the question of the furnishing the ship herself by the argument, such as it is, that there is no difference between a ship and a cannon, and that both the United States and the rebels have bought arms in England; and he argues very strenuously that the sailing of the vessel was "in spite of earnest endeavors made to enforce the law." But he does not allude to the point which Mr. ADAMS had made, that her "crew, her equipment and her arms were sent out to her by the same British subjects who built and dispatched her."

But the point was not overlooked, and when, some months after, Earl RUSSELL thought he could successfully charge the same offence against us, of recruiting upon British soil, there was no delay in making the charge. If it had been true, it would have very effectually stopped Mr. ADAMS' mouth, for how could he complain that rebel agents had been allowed to engage seamen in England, if agents of the United States were at the same time engaging soldiers there. Mr. ADAMS at once met the charge with a prompt denial. He declared that no authority had been given by the United States to listen to any proposals to enter its service, or to make any engagement. He had no reason to believe that any American citizen in England, clothed with authority, had ventured to act in any other way.

This denial by Mr. ADAMS was followed by the following very extraordinary letter from Earl RUSSELL:

FOREIGN OFFICE, April 20, 1863.

SIR: With regard to the complaints which you have made, from time to time, of British sailors who have entered the Confederate service, I have to remark that no steps have hitherto been taken by the United States authorities to prevent British subjects from entering the military or naval service of the United States.

Mr. SEWARD has on the contrary, justified the measures used, provided there were not bribery or intimidation, to induce British sailors to enter the Federal service.

You will readily perceive the justice of the request I am about to make, namely, that before you repeat your complaints that British sailors have entered the service of the so-called Confederate States, you will furnish us with proofs that all British subjects, serving in the Federal Army or Navy, have been discharged, and that orders have been given not to enlist or engage such persons to serve in arms contrary to the tenor of Her Majesty's Proclamation.

I have the honor to be, with the highest consideration, Sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

RUSSELL.

CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS, Esq.

This was a position both extraordinary and illogical. The controversy stood thus: Mr. ADAMS had said, "You have allowed rebel agents to recruit for rebel ships in English ports." "What of it?" said RUSSELL, "your agents have recruited for your army on English soil." "No; they have not," rejoins Mr. ADAMS. "Well," says RUSSELL, "before you make any more complaints to me about the rebels recruiting here, you must prove to me that you have discharged all Englishmen that have entered your service in your own territory."

This is about a fair example of the ideas of neutrality which have prevailed in some English minds. There had been no complaint that Englishmen were on the rebel ships. It was that they were shipped in English ports. If all the English sailors in the world had chosen to make their way into Charleston, and there join rebel vessels, we should not have complained. It was their being shipped in England, so that the expeditions were manned on most as equipped from England throughout, of which we complained—and "neutrality" said, You must not complain till you have proved that you have discharged all Englishmen, who have entered your service on your own soil.

Mr. ADAMS' letter, calling attention to the monstrosity of this requirement, was so conclusive that Earl RUSSELL had nothing better to say than to misstate the point, and to speak as if the ground of complaint was not what Mr. ADAMS had stated it to be—"The violation of neutrality committed within their kingdom by the enlistment of her Majesty's subjects in a war on the United States," but the fact that "British subjects took service with the so-called Confederate States." To the former complaint he made no answer. His answer to the latter was tolerably conclusive, if only any such complaint had ever been made. Undoubtedly, before we complain to England that her subjects are in the rebel service, we must see to it that none of them are in our own. But we shall not wait till that time to complain that she allows them to be enlisted upon her own soil.

THE BATTLE OF ANTIETAM.—At last we have that section of Gen. McCLELLAN's report which gives the history of the battle of Antietam. It attempts an explanation of the failure to follow up LEE after the disastrous defeat which was there administered to him; but, with a whole year devoted to the task, Gen. McCLELLAN has failed to construct a defence which the public will pronounce impregnable. He states that "the troops were greatly overcome by the fatigue and exhaustion" attendant upon the battle of Sept. 17, together with the severe marches they had previously executed. Did any army ever fight a great battle, extending through one day, without becoming fatigued and exhausted? Yet there are numerous instances on record of partial victories having been triumphantly completed after two and even after several days' fighting. Then is there any reason to believe that LEE's beaten and dispirited troops were any less fatigued and exhausted than our own victorious men? That excuse would more than have justified ROSECRANS in abandoning the field and the victory to BRAGG after the first day's bloody repulse at Murfreesboro. It is stated, too, that on the right, HOOKER's corps and one division of SUMNER's, had been driven back with heavy loss, and in disorder, and the troops there were consequently not deemed in a proper condition to renew the attack. The heaviest fighting, however, would naturally have taken place on the left, as the first movement would have been to cut LEE off from the Potomac; and Gen. McCLELLAN virtually acknowledges that this wing of the army was in good condition, when he states that only the new troops attached to it had their morale impaired by a repulse late in the day on Sept. 17.

It is urged still further that some of our heaviest and most efficient batteries had exhausted their ammunition on the 17th, and could not be supplied until the following day. Is it probable that LEE's supply was any larger than that which our army had at its disposal? Then, again, reinforcements were on the way, who might take part in the action if its renewal were postponed to the 19th. Had Gen. McCLELLAN's previous experience of his antagonist's tactics led him to believe that he would quietly sit still, and be demolished according to the most approved scientific rules? Gen. LEE knew perfectly well that more troops were en route to McCLELLAN, and he took the easiest method to avoid a conflict with them—got out of the way. In his anxiety to defend himself from the charge of indecision and tardiness in not pushing his advantage early on Sept. 18, Gen. McCLELLAN presents as another excuse the fact that, on the afternoon of that day, Gen. BURNSIDE withdrew his command to the east side of Antietam Creek, and some of the minor apologies which he advances in his report are equally inconsistent or trivial.

Grateful as the country was for a mere delivery from the fearful perils which threatened it previous to the battles of Antietam and Gettysburgh, the people look back to these victories regretfully when they remember how much more nearly decisive either of them might have been made; and Gen. McCLELLAN would have partially cleared his military reputation of the cloud now resting upon it if, instead of attempting a defence of that vacillation of purpose which made his retention in command an impossibility, he had frankly acknowledged that at Antietam, at least, he was mistaken in his judgment.

A DESERTED MONARCH.—An important rumor comes to us from Norfolk, Va. JEFF. DAVIS' steward and chambermaid are reported to have arrived at that place direct from Richmond. About a year ago, when the rebel military authorities were impressing all the horses they could find in Virginia, Mr. DAVIS' coachman made his advent in Washington, perhaps because he found his occupation gone; and the supposition is certainly reasonable that his ebony colaborers have followed his example, for the same sufficient reason. The scarcity of provisions at Richmond has unquestionably reduced the larder of the head rebel to an exceedingly lean condition. What need, therefore, of a steward? And as it is authentically rumored that Richmond is even now in process of abandonment, what does JEFF. DAVIS want of a chambermaid? Or, perhaps, with the proverbial sagacity of her class, this slave-woman has forecast the fearful storm which is so soon to turn her former master out of his house and home, and has deserted his falling fortunes in time to achieve her own salvation.

A word to the people of Norfolk, however. While they have these interesting rebel relics in their possession, will they not furnish them with some evidence of their identity, which will effectually forestall any attempts to counterfeit them. JEFF. DAVIS' coachman had not been in Washington a week before a dozen negroes were doing business on his reputation in all parts of the country, and in addition to these more recent intriguers, they stand in

SPEECH OF HON. MONTGOMERY BLAIR.—We publish in another part of this morning's TIMES a speech recently made by the Postmaster-General before the Maryland Legislature. It is an able and elaborate exposition and vindication of President LINCOLN's policy in the prosecution of the war against the rebellion, and especially of his recent Message and Proclamation. Unlike his former speech in Maryland, it avoids topics that have become matters of controversy among Union men, and cannot fail to command the assent and admiration of the public at large.

Fine Arts.

Messrs. LEMME & Co. offer for sale on Wednesday evening, some pictures of rare merit. They have been on exhibition for some days past at the old Dusseldorf Gallery, No. 365 Broadway, and the spacious room having been lit up after seven to attract those who are fond of art, it has been thronged until a late hour. Generally we are tempted by the pictures of modern artists, and we have to the collection which hangs on the south wall excellent specimens of De Loose and Kennis, but what is more worthy of remark are the older masters, some of whom are most creditably represented in the sixty-eight pictures which we are told form the gallery of a connoisseur. Thus the "Poesia," the "Agostino-Carracci," a remarkably fine specimen; the "Jouvenets," the "Durghem," and "Pietro de Cordoya," stand prominently forth. The "Sebastian Gomez," and "St. Catharine," with the "Rose de Tivoli" by its side, attracts all who enter the room. Even for the lounger the visit is not thrown away. For many of these pictures, doubtless, there will be a sharp competition among collectors on the night of sale.

Musical.

CHAMBER MUSIC.—The second soirée of chamber music by Messrs. MASON, THOMAS, MOSENTHAL, MARSKA and BENDER, will take place at Dodworth's Saloon to-night. Here is the programme: Quartette for strings in B flat major, by HAYDN; sonata for piano and violin in A minor opus 105, by SCHUMANN; and quartette for strings in E flat major opus 127, by BEETHOVEN.

THE NEW-YORK ILLUSTRATED NEWS has recently passed into the hands of Mr. J. H. DUNCANS, who is infusing new life and energy into it, and intends to make it a first-class illustrated journal in every respect. A new and exclusive feature will be a page devoted to the fashions, under the direction of Mme. DUNCANS. This will render the journal highly valuable to the ladies.

Reception of the Fifty-eighth Regiment Veteran Volunteers.

The German population of the City, and especially the former officers and soldiers of this brave and favorite regiment, together with the many warm personal friends of Acting Brig.-Gen. W. KRZYSZNOWSKI, by whom it was raised, have made great efforts to give this regiment, which, having veteranized as a veteran regiment, comes home on a thirty days' furlough, a grand reception and most cordial welcome. Out of a full regiment which left here in October, 1861, but a small band of 300, under the command of Lieut.-Col. A. GINE, returns, the regiment having participated in nearly every battle in the Army of the Potomac, and fought last under GRANT in Tennessee, losing heavily at Chancellorville, Gettysburgh and Lookout Mountain. The regiment is accompanied by Acting Brig.-Gen. W. KRZYSZNOWSKI, under whose able command it received for its bravery, steadiness under fire and good discipline, the name of the "Glorious Fifty-eighth," by which it is known among its comrades, and is the first of his brigade, the whole of which having reinlisted as a veteran brigade, will shortly arrive here. The regiment is expected this morning, and will be received by the Fifth regiment, N. Y. M. C., Col. BERGER, Capt. Oerke's Company of Carbine Rangers, Col. SIGEL, of the One Hundred and Third regiment, N. Y. S. V., and his officers, together with other detachments of volunteers in the City. The regiment will be received at the foot of Cortlandt-street, and escorted to the City Hall, where it will be reviewed by Mayor GUNTHER, thence up Broadway to Fourteenth-street, thence to and down the Bowery to Atlantic Garden, where a collation will be provided. Hon. J. T. BRADY will there receive the flag presented to the regiment when it left for the war, and which, torn and pierced by 48 hundred bullets, is to be handed over to the City authorities. An address in German will also be delivered by Dr. H. DULEE.

Kidnapping Men.

TRIAL BY COURT-MARTIAL OF THE SURGEON OF GEN. SPINOLA'S HEADQUARTERS.

Yesterday morning the Court-martial, ordered by Gen. DIX, to try the officers belonging to Gen. SPINOLA'S brigade who had enlisted men contrary to the rules and articles of war, met at the old police headquarters, corner of Elm and Broome-streets, for the purpose of trying JOSIAH A. KERNAN, Examining Surgeon, charged with passing men while in a state of intoxication and perfectly unconscious. To the charge the defendant pleaded not guilty. The Court consists of Capt. J. P. Lockman, One Hundred and Nineteenth New-York; Capt. D. L. Sullivan, Sixty-ninth New-York; Capt. G. H. Vanderveer, One Hundred and Forty-fifth New-York; Capt. J. J. Hearn, One Hundred and Sixty-fourth New-York; Lieut. James Ferrest, Seventy-third New-York; Lieut. K. Mooney, One Hundred and Fiftieth New-York; Lieut. C. Hunter, Twelfth New-York Battery, and Capt. Wright Rives, A. D. C., Judge Advocate. The counsel for the accused was Mr. McKEON, who stated that Mr. KERNAN had received no commission from the War Department, having received his appointment from Col. BARNES, and was, therefore, not amenable to the rules and articles of war. After deliberation, the Court decided that, having his name, as Examining Surgeon, to enlistment papers, he was liable to be tried by Court-martial.

The first charge made against Surgeon KERNAN was, that on or about the 30th of November last, he had passed VINCENT RUELLAN, a seaman on board the French corvette Turpleine, while in a state of beastly intoxication, and perfectly unconscious. All that RUELLAN could remember, was having been invited to drink by a man, then being carried to Brooklyn and put in soldier's clothes. He might be able to recognize the man who asked him to drink; had never seen Surgeon KERNAN before yesterday; the signature attached to the enlistment papers, he thought was not his, as he wrote a better hand. The Court then adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning.

The Rockaway Blockade-Runner.

About a week ago, an account was given in these columns of a certain Rockaway Captain, commanding a sloop, who had induced a number of South-street merchants to load his vessel with articles contraband of war, for the purpose of running the blockade into Eastern Virginia, instead of which he ran into Rockaway, and there disposed of the goods on his own account. At least, so ran the rumor. But it now appears that Surveyor Andrews had an eye upon this sloop, and detailed some special officers to watch her, who, as the vessel slipped her moorings one dark night, and set sail without a permit from Marshal MURRAY, gave chase, and after a tedious search, found her at Northwest Inlet, Far Rockaway, where she lay, half filled with water and sand, and completely ice-bound. Upon inquiry, the officers found that the vessel had just touched at Near Rockaway, where she had discharged her cargo; and the Captain had disposed of the most valable portion of the cargo and pocketed the proceeds. The remainder is now in the possession of the Sheriff of Queens County, but how or why he should attach it has not been made plain. The sloop was named Amanda, commanded by JAMES FUNSTAN, and was cleared for Chesapeake, Va. She was loaded with tea, indigo, pins, blacking, envelopes, writing paper, whisky, printed music, and a number of cotton cards. It was also stated she was carrying out a boat-skiff as a present to Mrs. Jefferson DAVIS. Beside the cargo, a quantity of baggage was on board the sloop belonging to parties anxious to run the blockade, who were to get on board at some point off Long Island. They were not called for, and the baggage is held with the cargo.

A Tragedy in Sullivan-street.

A COLORED MAN SHOOTS A WOMAN AND THEN HIMSELF—BOTH INSTANTLY KILLED.

Shortly before 10 o'clock yesterday morning, a domestic tragedy occurred in Sullivan-street, between Amity and Bleecker streets, that resulted in the death of two persons, both of whom were interesting. An inquest was held yesterday afternoon by Coroner WOOD, upon the following facts were elicited: [illegible] Monday morning, we were [illegible] this brown sugar [illegible] I said, [illegible] paper [illegible] taking her bed and there he took out his revolver and without [illegible] the pistol and fired at the deceased. Two shots were made in quick succession. Charge then took effect in the heart and the other in the right side. The woman staggered and fell almost immediately. Brown went to her, partially raised her from the floor, and when he saw that she was dying, he put the pistol to his head and fired. The ball took effect. He fell beside his victim and died in a few minutes after.

The Coroner's Jury rendered a verdict in accordance with the above facts. Both parties are said to have been respectably connected, and were living in comfortable circumstances. Mrs. SMITZER was a married woman with two children. For some time past she had been living with HAGGUS WEST, at No. 217 Sullivan-street, apart from her husband. She was about 30 years of age, and Brown was about 28 years. There seems to have been some intimacy between the two which the testimony on the inquest did not fully disclose.

Fire Department Ball.

The Thirty-fifth Annual Ball of the New-York Fire Department was held last evening at the Academy of Music.

The room was most magnificently dressed; from the dome hung long lines of flowers extending to the dress circle; each tier was ornamented with sprigs of flowers hanged up to, and enriching each light; the boxes were most beautifully ornamented on either side with the signal lamps of Engine Companies Nos. 2, 15, 30, 35, 36 and 42, and Hook and Ladder Companies Nos. 6 and 12, and between which were neatly arranged a number of highly polished pipes, now mounted by the fire caps of the many hers of the Brooklyn Engine Company. At the rear of the stage stood the little fairy like carriage of Hose Company No. 36 brilliantly lighted up, the new and beautiful carriage of Engine Company No. 36, pointed to the highest possible degree, and reflecting the many lights upon and around it, and the many pretty faces and handsome dresses near it like a mirror, and the beautiful silver carriage of Hose Company No. 30, which has not been shown to the public since the great fire of 1861.

The back of the stage was lighted with a most extensive gas fixture, representing an eagle surrounded with stars, supporting the word "Union," below which the "New-York Fire Department," and below that a representation of fire cap, ladders, hooks, &c., making one of the most beautiful gas-lights ever seen in the Academy.

The company present was most brilliant, and the Department ball, always excellent, this year surpassed itself; the floor arrangements were perfect, and though the hall was crowded to its utmost extent, room was made that the dancers might enjoy themselves.

Mr. A. J. DELMONICO, President of the New-York Fire Department, and Treasurer of the Ball, deserves great credit for the care and labor he bestowed, that the ball might be perfect in all its arrangements. His efforts, combined with those of the rest of the Committee, were crowned with success.

Mayor GUNTHER, the Chairman of the Ball was present and presided over it.

Improving the Broadway Pavement.

MEETING OF THE COMMITTEE ON STREETS.

The Aldermanic Street Committee met again yesterday to consider the subject of improving the pavement on Broadway, Alderman CUTTY presiding.

A number of letters received by the Chairman since the last meeting, and containing suggestions and plans, were submitted for reading.

Mr. DE WITT STEVENS, of Newark, proposes to break off the edges of the Rose blocks, as they are now laid, without disturbing the blocks from their foundations, at $2 per square yard. On second thought he deemed that it would be better to take up and relay the largest blocks.

An anonymous correspondent said if the Rose pavement was kept clean and was heated would not slip.

Mr. ALEXANDER EDWARDS, of Brooklyn, proposed to put an iron plate in the centre of each block, with a flat head projecting out half an inch, to prevent horses from slipping.

Mr. A. OLIVER commended the iron pavement now laid in Nassau-street, in front of the Post-office. He says it wants the solid concrete laid below the Broadway pavement to render it superior to any pavement in use.

Mr. JAMES R. CROSSMAN, of Woodbridge, N. J., proposes the placing of common hard brick sand-wise between the blocks, and sink slightly below the surface. This arrangement, he says, would give broad and smooth grooves, that would afford a sure preventive against an animal slipping down.

Mr. EDWIN F. POST don't agree with Mr. HAMMERSMOOR, of the Tribune, that the Belgian pavement is desirable for Broadway, and invites him to ride up town, especially through Fifth-avenue, to convince him that the Belgian pavement, though at first rough, grows smooth in the course of a few years, and that it does not prevent a horse from slipping sideways.

Mr. G. F. ZINZLER submitted a model for examination. It exhibits stones of triangular shape nearly rounded on the edges, and flat on the bottom and sides. They are laid in equilateral, of which each two three form hexagons, the slippery off of the angles is so narrow that each angle is less than a right angle. The surface of each stone being flat, he says none would injure horses' heads as the cobble-stones do, while the pavement has all the inequalities necessary for safe footing. On the bed of concrete below the present pavement on Broadway, he would put it down for 94 per square yard.

Capt. HARRT, of the Police, proposed to chip off the corners of the present blocks, and drill a 1½-inch (width) hole in each.

Mr. JOHN VERBRYCKEN proposes to drill two 1½-inch holes in each block, split it, and then chip out a piece two inches long by half an inch wide on each side of the stone.

Mr. THOMAS submitted an offer to turn over the present blocks, and fill up the spaces between on relaying with cement or concrete for 41 per yard.

Mr. VINCENT FOUNTAIN, Jr., of Castleton, Staten Island, presented a model for iron pavement, which he claims would last at least forty years, but which would cost $40 per square yard.

The Committee are to meet again at 2 o'clock P. M. on Thursday.

Shooting Affair in Broadway.

A MYSTERY EXPLAINED.

Broadway near Murray-street, Friday afternoon last, was the scene of a somewhat unusual occurrence, even for a city like New-York, abounding, as it does, in novelties and extraordinary events. At about 4 o'clock P. M., pedestrians who happened to be passing in the vicinity of Murray-street, were thrown into an unusual excitement by hearing the report of a pistol; by seeing the frantic efforts of the man who fired the shot to escape from the person fired at, who, covered with blood, cooled revolver in hand, rushed across the carriage-way through the crowd, knocking every one in his way aside very unceremoniously, evidently determined to summarily punish his would-be murderer. His career was suddenly arrested, however, by Lieut. WHITEHEAD, of Gen. KILPATRICK'S staff, who seized the infuriated man, wrenched the pistol from his hand, and handed him over to constable Brunsdon for medical treatment.

The affair happened, unobserved by the Police, and after patient inquiry in the vicinity, no one seemed to know aught about it, and the non-publication of the facts attached increased interest and mystery to the matter. It now appears that a negro, who had crossed from the Park to Murray-street, was asked by a beauty broker, and in self-defence drew a pistol, discharging it twice at his assailant. The balls did no injury, but one passed through the breast of the coat of a citizen. The negro escaped and ran among the crowd to avoid the broker, who, with pistol in hand, gave chase. The latter in his excitement received severe injury by collision with an omnibus, but continued the chase until arrested in his career by Lieut. WHITEHEAD as above stated. The negro continued on and made good his escape.

The Clergyman in Platteville.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The Baptist Minister referred to in your paper of the 23d inst., as in destitute circumstances, is not just to say, does not belong to the denomination generally known by that name in this community. Baptists have been applied to with others, for him for aid, and they have largely responded; and yet they barely consider themselves individually responsible for his support as if he belonged to their communion.

THE WAR IN THE SOUTH.

Rebel Forces in Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia.

(Correspondence of the St. Louis Republican.)

MEMPHIS, TENN., Sunday, Jan. 17, 1864.

I have had a conversation with some gentlemen who have just been from Dixie. They report that the South is full of Mississippi filled with rebel Confederate troops and guerrillas, who are now collecting forage and conscripting. They are preparing for a dead struggle in the spring, and that struggle will be in Northern Georgia. Vast quantities of corn are scattered along the line of railroad in Mississippi, which is intended for the use of the Confederate army.

The Confederates, in the number of four thousand, under Ross, are now at Canton, Mississippi, from Jackson to Greenville. They have six pieces of artillery, and intend to dispute the passage of the river. There are also two thousand on the Alabama side, who act in concert with Ross. On Sunday last, they fired three shots into the steamer Belle, near Greenville, three shots taking effect. One shot carried away her rudder, and one shot exploded in her cabin, wounding a negro. The passengers all escaped out of range. The gun Hovey was fired into near the same place, she was hit several times, but escaped with slight injury. The Emma and Belle Prairie were also fired into, but fortunately no one was hurt.

Rebel papers speak in glowing terms of the success of Forrest in getting conscripts and volunteers in West Tennessee. They put the number at 10,000, and even some go up as high as 20,000.

Chalmers, who formerly lived in Memphis, and is well known to our citizens, telegraphed to a rebel paper that Forrest had succeeded in obtaining 10,000 recruits.

One of the refugees says he left the capital of the Confederate States on Monday morning, the 20th of December, en route to cross the rebel lines by way of Wilmington, Lumberton, and thence up the Mobile and Ohio railroad to Chalons, Miss. He reached Atlanta, Ga., in time to witness the reception of Gen. Longstreet by the citizens of that place. He assured me great demonstrations were made in behalf of this glorious gentleman, in bitter denunciations of the unworthy and treacherous predecessor, Gen. Bragg. Bragg, by the blind and deluded populace.

The reception among the city in large crowds, at least the gold-worshipping portion, paying the wholesome respects to Mr. Davis and others of the grave Confederate aristocracy of the southern Confederate States, whose hearts, on the other hand, will be withered and the most solemn scenes. Every house is a hospital, where hundreds are suffering most intensely, under treatment of incompetent boy-surgeons, from disease, a large majority of whom will inevitably be fit for service with the next twelve months, if then.

The demoralization of the women is a marked characteristic in Richmond under the present condition of affairs. The absence of those who should protect and support them, and the presence of those men who are themselves removed from the restraining influence of society and family influences, has caused the fall of multitudes of those who would have been unblemished and virtuous under circumstances of social order. The consequences of this state of things are most frightful.

He (Longstreet) left on to North Carolina, to the City of Wilmington. Perfect confidence in the wanted success and independence of their rebellious Government is unanimously entertained among those who are escaping from Jeff. Davis.

Next I came on to Augusta, Ga., where I found Bragg; a number of his cavalry dismounted and scattered throughout the entire country. Some of them could be seen with their rusty knapsacks and ragged garments, all along the line of railroad, and upon inquiry they will tell you that they were taking a "furlough," and were going home, regardless of consequences.

At this point it is the intention of the Government to collect all the forces possible to wipe out Sherman's retreat. These forces who can be spared from Charleston, Wilmington, Mobile, Montgomery, and other places, will probably be sent there, including the prisoners who were taken and paroled at Vicksburg and Port Hudson. At this point I will state that there is very little confidence in the currency of the country, hence being worth only 250 per day in the office, and, of course, the proprietors of these establishments have gone are amassing enormous fortunes of this worthless trash.

I passed through Mobile, Ala. Here he met heart-broken widows, and bewailing, disconsolate women.

I was informed that Gladsen, stopping for a day at Montgomery, which is a military post, commanded by Brig.-Gen. Clements, of the Fifth Missouri Brigade, which is in command. He was informed by an intermediate gentleman, that there were perhaps 4,000 troops there. On the Southern Railroad at Opelika, Auburn and Chalons there were reported to be between 1,000 and 2,000 infantry and cavalry. At Auburn, Oxford and Talladega, there were also reported to be some cavalry, under command of Rousseau and Roddey, respectively—the whole commanded by Brigadier-Gen. Lee.

At Chalons he heard that Forrest encamped, with a regular force of 5,000 cavalry, and perhaps a number of paroled prisoners from Fort Hudson, who are declared by the rebel authorities to have been exchanged, and have already been supplied with arms.

In all these are collected in the neighborhood of Chalons to West Mississippi. But it is evidently the intention of the rebels to concentrate a large force as possible in this portion of the country in order to invade West Tennessee the coming Spring, for the purpose, of drawing, as much as possible, Sherman's attention from the movements of Johnston in Dalton.

Along the railroad from the Alabama line, he noticed an enormous amount of corn in rail pens, completely exposed to the weather, being without covering.

Longstreet vs. Boston.

CIRCULATION OF THE PRESIDENT'S AMNESTY PROCLAMATION.

A letter from Knoxville says:

"On the 9th inst., our pickets stationed beyond Mates Cross-Roads, upon the Rutledge Pike, discovered a small mounted party approaching with a flag of truce.

The party was halted, and the officer having in charge a verbal communication addressed to Maj.-Gen. S. G. French, commanding the Union forces, was conducted to the headquarters of Maj.-Gen. Parke, in the immediate command of the troops in the field, who received the officer with great courtesy, and extended to him those hospitalities which the laws of war and the civilities between gentlemen require. The messenger bearing the flag and the communication was assured that the latter would be immediately presented to the Commanding-General of the department, and the proper answer returned to the lines of Longstreet as soon as it should be received from Knoxville.

Gen. Parke forwarded the letter without opening it. Appended is a copy:

HEADQUARTERS CONFEDERATE FORCES, }
HEAR SIR, Jan. 3, 1864. }

To the Commanding General U. S. Forces at Knoxville, Tenn.:

Sir: I find the following in the Knoxville Times:

"Mr. President Lincoln's proclamation, dated the 1st of December last, is characterized in the strongest language by our rulers. The immediate object of this strongest language, appears to be to induce our soldiers to quit our ranks and to raise the cry of allegiance to the United States, and to desert to the enemy, however, that the great object had end in view it has been found to be a failure. I respectfully suggest, for your consideration, the propriety of communicating any views that your Government may have upon the subject through me, rather than to allow circulated among our soldiers. The few men who have left our ranks to take the oath of allegiance, cannot be men of character or standing. If they desert their cause, they degrade themselves in the eyes of God and of men. They can do your cause no good, nor can their injure ours.

In a great nation, you can accept none but an honorable surrender; or a conquered people, you can accept no terms but those of unconditional submission. I submit, therefore, whether the mode that Longstreet would not be more likely to lead to an honorable end, than such a circulation of a partial promise of pardon.

I am, sir, very respectfully, your most obedient servant.

J. LONGSTREET,
Lieut.-Gen. Com'g.

MAJ.-GEN. S. G. FRENCH.

HEADQUARTERS DEPARTMENT OF THE OHIO, }
KNOXVILLE, TENN., Jan. 7, 1864. }

Major-General Commanding Forces in East Tennessee:

SIR: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 3d inst., 1864, yesterday correct in the copy of the Knoxville Times, which I have to inform there new in which appeared the Government, to lay aside their arms and return to their allegiance, as citizens of the United States, thus assuring the citizens of States now engaged in hostility to the laws and restoration of peace. The immediate object of the circulation may be to cause many one to leave your ranks, to return home, to come within our lines, and, in view of this, your course, it has been thought proper, in lieu of an order announcing the amnesty terms on which deserters will be received, to have a more courteous to induce you to place these documents in your hands, and I embrace with pleasure the opportunity thus afforded to induce to you twenty (20) copies of each of these documents, and rely upon your generosity and distinguished power to give publicity to the same among your command.

I have the honor to be, General,

Very respectfully,

J. G. FOSTER, Maj.-Gen. Com'g.

MAJ.-GEN. S. G. FRENCH.

A Neglected Cold may cause months of suffering, and often ends at last in Consumption, Bronchitis or other Pulmonary Affection. Where neglect is attended by results so dangerous, what can justify the careless indifference of waiting for a cold to get well itself? If those who are now troubled with Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, &c., would surely avoid the dreadful sufferings of the consumptive, let them take at once Dr. D. JAYNE'S Expectorant, a remedy whose efficacy has been established thirty years. Prepared only by Dr. D. JAYNE & SON, Philadelphia.

All Dr. D. JAYNE & SON'S Family Medicines are sold in New-York by RITCHEN, TYLER & CO., No. 142 Chambers-st., and No. 1 Hudson-st., and by Druggists generally.

Hoyt's Hiawatha Hair Restorative differs from dyes. Dyes impart a uniform dead black color to the hair, so that different persons have the same colored hair; the Hiawatha restores the hair to its original color and preserves the harmony between the complexion and color of the hair. Dyes require scraping and washing and hours for application; the Hiawatha is as readily applied as any hair dressing. Dyes stain the skin wherever they touch it; the Hiawatha is wiped away like any dressing from the hair. Dyes make the hair gummy and dirty; the Hiawatha cleanses it from all impurities. Dyes stain the hair by mere contact with it and are washed off; the color the Hiawatha gives cannot be washed out. The Hiawatha restores the natural shading of the hair. Which is preferable?

DEAFNESS AND CATARRH CURED.

No. 430 SIXTH-AV., NEW-YORK, Dec. 2, 1863.

I was deaf for several years, and hearing of the great cures performed by Dr. Von Eisenberg, I was induced to place myself under his care, and I am now happy to state that my hearing was entirely restored after a short treatment. I was also suffering from chronic catarrh, of which I was also cured by the skillful treatment of Dr. Von Eisenberg. I do but justice to the Doctor in stating that in treating me he displayed that skill and knowledge which have already procured for him such a deserved reputation, and that the principles which direct his system of curing Deafness and Catarrh are such as to render success certain, in my opinion. Many months have passed since Dr. Von Eisenberg restored my hearing, and it continues as good as ever.

CATARRH CURED.
READ!

I have been suffering for a long time from a severe Catarrh, with a continual dullness in my head, a tightness across my chest, a weight over my eyes, which were weak, watery, and very painful. My nostrils were constantly obstructed with a pouring fluid. That frequent sneezing, hoarseness of my voice, often attended with a fullness of my throat, great soreness, and a continual dropping. Dr. Von Eisenberg has cured me of all these disagreeable sufferings. I may, indeed, say that I feel a new life. The treatment of Dr. Von Eisenberg is so skillful as it is successful. It is in my opinion impossible to overrate the benefit I have received at his hands. I heartily recommend any one suffering like myself to place themselves under Dr. Von Eisenberg's care, with a certainty of being speedily cured.

HARLEM, July 30, 1863.

I have been deaf for over TWENTY-FIVE YEARS, and Dr. Von Eisenberg operated on both of my ears without the slightest pain—a thing that I could not believe could be done. I now hear well, and feel as I never did for the last twenty years. The dexterity and skill with which the operation was performed evinces the highest practical ability. I hear perfectly. It is now over a month since the operation, and I continue to feel as well as ever.

WILLIAM LIDDLE,
Harlem, 126th-st., between 2d and 3d-ave.

No. 158 ALLEN-ST., NEW-YORK, Feb. 3, 1863.

I have been completely deaf in one ear, and partially so in the other, for above seventeen years, with a disagreeable discharge from both ears, combined with continual rumbling noises in the head, for which I have been treated by a most eminent practitioner in the City without the slightest relief.

Consulted Dr. Von Eisenberg, but I must candidly say that I had no faith in his success when I did so. It is, therefore, due to Dr. Von Eisenberg to acknowledge that I am entirely cured; also, that he displayed that skill and knowledge which have procured for him such an unrivaled reputation. As I have had an opportunity of comparing his method with that of others, I can truly state that it is not only superior, but the principles which direct his modes of restoring the hearing are, in my opinion, certain.

JOHN TAYLOR.

NEW-YORK, July 23, 1862.

This certifies that my mother has been for some time afflicted with partial deafness, suffering from pain, and rumbling noises in the head, together with other indications of a total loss of hearing. Dr. Von Eisenberg removed from her ears a great quantity of matter, together with congealed blood, relieving her instantaneously, and all without pain. His with grateful thanks that I give this testimony to his skill.

CHRONIC CATARRH CURED.
READ.

NEW-YORK, March 20, 1863.

This is to certify, that I have suffered from very severe CHRONIC CATARRH, with a dull heaviness in the head. I felt my nose completely stopped up accompanied by continual soreness of the throat, the chills stealing over me with occasional hot flushes, a great tightness of the chest and pain, so much so, that every one thought it was consumption. Having heard of the great cures performed by Dr. Von Eisenberg, I consulted him with but little hope of cure. I am now happy to be enabled to call my testimonial to the great number already in the Doctor's possession, as to his scientific and successful mode of treatment, as he has shown in my case that skill and knowledge which have procured for him such a reputation. I am so entirely restored to perfect health that I do most sincerely recommend all sufferers from CHRONIC CATARRH and SORE THROAT to apply at once to Dr. Von Eisenberg with a certainty of being cured."

TESTIMONIALS.

We have learned to be astonished at nothing. Years of experience and a correspondence extending throughout all nationalities of the habitable globe have turned theories into facts, and established a basis from which we need not err. We are not surprised at such facts as the following—although the persons who write them are. We know the persons and circumstances, hence feel at liberty to believe their statements.

"NEW-BEDFORD, Mass., Nov. 24, 1863.

DEAR SIR: I have been afflicted many years with severe proceeding causes in my limbs, calls feet and hands, and a general disordered system. Physicians and medicine failed to relieve me. While visiting south friends in New-York who were using Plantation Bitters, they prevailed upon me to try them. I commenced with a small wine-glassful after dinner. Feeling better by degrees, in a few days I was astonished to find the coldness and cramps had entirely left me, and I could sleep the night through, which I have not done for years. I feel like another being; my appetite and strength have also greatly improved by the use of the Plantation Bitters.

Respectfully, JUDITH RUSSELL."

"RAMSBURG, Va., Sept. 16, 1863.

* * * I have been in the army hospital for fourteen months—speechless and nearly dead. At Alton, Ill., they gave me a bottle of Plantation Bitters. * * * Three bottles restored my speech and cured me. * * *.

The following is from the Manager of the Union Home School for the Children of Volunteers:

"HAVERSTRAW MANSION, FIFTY-SEVENTH-ST., }
NEW-YORK, Aug. 3, 1863. }

DR. DRAKE: Your wonderful Plantation Bitters have been given to some of our little children suffering from weakness and weak lungs with most happy effect. One little girl in particular, with pains in her head, loss of appetite, and daily wasting consumption, on whom all medical skill had been exhausted, has been entirely restored. We commenced with but a teaspoonful of Bitters a day. Her appetite and strength rapidly increased, and she is now well.

Respectfully, MRS. O. M. DEVOE."

* * * I owe much to you, for I verily believe the Plantation Bitters have saved my life.

REV. W. H. WAGGONER, Madrid, New-York."

* * * Then will send me two bottles more of the Plantation Bitters. My wife has been greatly benefited by their use.

The Plantation Bitters make the weak strong, the languid brilliant, and are exhausted nature's great restorer. They are composed of the celebrated Calisaya Bark, Wintergreen, Sassafras, Roots, Herbs, &c., all preserved in perfectly Pure St. Croix Rum.

S. T.—1863.—X.

Persons of sedentary habits troubled with weakness, lassitude, palpitation of the heart, lack of appetite, dizziness after eating, torpid liver, constipation, &c., deserve to suffer if they will not try them.

They are recommended by the highest medical authorities, and are warranted to produce an immediate beneficial effect. They are exceedingly agreeable, perfectly pure, and harmless.

NOTICE.—Any person pretending to sell Plantation Bitters in bulk or by the gallon is a swindler and impostor. It is put up only in our log-cabin bottle. Beware of bottles refilled with imitation deleterious stuff, for which several persons are already in prison. See that every bottle has our United States stamp over the cork unmutilated, and signature on steel-plate side label.

CHICAGO AND GREAT EASTERN RAILWAY COMPANY,
FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS,
FOR $2,000,000.

SUBSCRIPTION BOOKS OPENED WITH
Hoadley, SCHUCHARDT & GERHARD, Bankers,
No. 31 Nassau-st., New-York.

The Chicago and Great Eastern Railway Company now offer for sale one million two hundred thousand dollars of their first mortgage bonds, in sums of one thousand dollars each, maturing in thirty years, bearing interest at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, payable in the City of New-York, on the first days of April and October, free of all taxes.

These bonds are secured by a first and only Mortgage on the property, income and franchises of the Railway Company, located in Frederick, Schoharie and Henry Counties, in the State of New-York, extending from Oneida-Lake, by the Otsego Valley, through Cooperstown, where it connects with the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Chicago Air-line Railroad, forming the shortest line by 40 miles, between Chicago and Cincinnati, and by 60 miles the shortest line between Louisville and Chicago.

The road is now open, in connection with roads now in operation, entirely new and very direct lines from Chicago to New-York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and all Eastern cities. The distance between Chicago and New-York is now shortened by 100 miles by either of the routes via the Erie Road or Buffalo.

The road is now under contract, and the most strong assurances have been made to have it open for traffic during the Summer of 1864.

The interest on these bonds maturing during the progress of the work has been provided for, and will remain in the hands of the Trustees of the Company, viz.: Messrs. SCHUCHARDT & GERHARD, No. 31 Nassau-st., to whom the Company refer for further particulars, and where subscription books for this loan are open.

AUCTION SALES.

REAL ESTATE AUCTION SALES
Solicited and attended to on favorable terms, by
D. M. SEAMAN, Auctioneer,
No. 14 Pine-st.
Ten years with ADRIAN H. MULLER.

SIMEON DRAPER, Auctioneer.

SCRANTON COAL AT AUCTION.

OFFICE OF THE DELAWARE, LACKAWANNA AND WESTERN RAILROAD COMPANY, NEW-YORK, Jan. 19, 1864.

This Company will sell their Twelfth Regular Monthly Auction on WEDNESDAY, the 27th day of January, 1864, at 12 o'clock noon, at the office of the Company, No. 55 William-st., at which time they will offer, by SIMEON DRAPER, Auctioneer, embracing all the usual sizes, and deliverable at their depot, Elizabethport, N. J., during the month of February next.

The sale will be positive. Each lot put up will be sold to the highest bidder; no bids in any form whatever, being made for account of, or on behalf of, the Company.

Fifty cents per ton, in bankable funds, to be paid at the time and place of sale, and the balance, in like funds, on receiving the notice for the coal, which must be called for within ten days thereafter, and the coal taken away within thirty days from the day of sale, unless navigation is obstructed. Buyers who wish, however, can have an additional thirty days for taking the delivery of their purchases, by making a further deposit of fifty cents per ton within the ten days above specified. Interest at seven per cent. per annum will be in such case, be charged on the balance, from the time stipulated for payment until paid; and twenty-five cents per ton to cover the expense of stacking the coal, both to be paid on delivery of order.

The other conditions of sale will be substantially those hitherto accepted by all purchasers, by private contract, of Coal deliverable at Elizabethport, so far as applicable. The coal will be delivered direct from the cars on their arrival from the mines, when practicable—otherwise from the stock. These conditions will be modified to meet the wants of Ocean Steamers, whose arrival cannot be definitely fixed. JOHN BRISBIN, President.

MESSRS WEEKES, Auctioneers.

MEDICAL.

PRIVATE DISEASES CURED IN THE SHORTEST TIME by DR. HARD & CO., No. 80 Liberty-st., near Broadway, without the use of Mercury, loss of time or change of diet. DR. HARD, from the University of Paris, Paris, and Edinburgh, is the discoverer of the only certain and reliable remedies for diseases of a private nature. In 24 years practice he has never met with a case he could not cure. Cases of long standing, or where other physicians have failed to cure, or where the patient has been given up by others as incurable, will find it will take but little money and time to restore you to health. If you have been poisoned by improper treatment, or the use of Mercury, or other mineral poisons, he is confident he can give a cure in the most reduced cases. Diseases of a delicate nature, such as Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Stricture, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, Syphilis, Secondary Symptoms, Gravel, Diseases of the Urinary Organs, Nervous Debility, Nervous Weakness, Lost Manhood, Premature Decay, Diseases of the Skin, Blotches, Pimples, Ulcers, Sore Throat, Mouth and Nose, Pains in the Bones, Joints and Limbs, Nightly Pains, Loss of Sleep, Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, Loss of Flesh, Nervous Trembling, Palpitation of the Heart, Dizziness, Loss of Memory, Premature Old Age, and all those diseases which have been pronounced incurable, have been cured by Dr. HARD. Recent cases, in one to five days, cured for $5. Medicines sent to any part of the country. Office hours, 9 to 9. Sundays, 9 to 2. Consultation free

Mr. ALLEN, of Massachusetts, (Union,) introduced a bill to provide the speedy transportation of the mails.

INCREASED PAY OF SOLDIERS.

Mr. HOLMAN, of Indiana, (Dem.,) offered a resolution instructing the Committee on Military Affairs to report a bill for the immediate increase of the pay of soldiers, which is imperatively demanded by the considerations of justice and sound policy, regard being had to the increased price of living since their pay was fixed at $13 per month.

Mr. BARRETT, of Pennsylvania, (Dem.,) moved to lay the resolution on the table. Though opposed to the motion himself, he made it merely to test the disposition of the House.

The House refused to table the resolution, almost unanimously, and it was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

MORE DISCORDANT RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. McDOWELL, of Indiana, (Dem.,) offered a series of resolutions, declaring that this House fully recognizes the fundamental provisions of the Constitution—which guarantee freedom of speech and of the press, and the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus, and prevent the illegal arrest and imprisonment of the citizens of loyal States; that neither the President nor any other person can violate these rights. The resolutions also reaffirm devotion to the Constitution, &c.

Mr. WASHBURNE, of Illinois, (Union,) expressing a desire to debate the resolutions, they lie over.

Mr. ECOMBS, of Indiana, (Dem.,) offered a series of resolutions, reaffirming the Crittenden Resolutions as the basis on which the war should be conducted, condemning the extraordinary assumption of the Executive power, and defining the peace and restoration of the Union under Twelfth Night influences, and without further waste of blood, speculating all military measures and policy as tending to divide the Union men of the country, and intensify the antagonism of the war.

Debate arising, the resolutions lie over.

THE GRADE OF LIEUTENANT-GENERAL.

Mr. FARNSWORTH, of Illinois, (Union,) from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported back, with an amendment, the bill reviving the rank of Lieutenant-General. The President is authorized to confer it whenever he may deem it expedient, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, on a commander of the army, to be selected during the war from among the officers below the grade of a Major-General—most distinguished for courage, skill and ability, and who, on being commissioned, shall command the armies of the United States; the Lieutenant-General to be entitled to the pay and allowances authorized by the existing laws, provided nothing in this act shall be construed to affect the rank, pay and allowances of Lieut.-Gen. Scott, now on the Retired List of the army.

Mr. FARNSWORTH, in answer to a question, said the President could confer a brevet on either a Major-General of the regular army or of volunteers.

Mr. FARNSWORTH, of Ohio, (Dem.,) moved to postpone the consideration of the bill until Monday next, to give time to examine the subject; the proposition not being yet printed.

The postponement was agreed to—62 yeas against 30 nays.

THE ENROLLMENT ACT.

Mr. SHANKLIN, of Ohio, (Union,) from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported back the Senate bill to amend the Enrollment act, with amendments, and moved to make it the special order for Wednesday next.

The House refused to suspend the rules and make the bill a special order for that day, and the bill was referred to the Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union.

THE DEFICIENCY BILL.

The House went into Committee of the Whole, with Mr. WASHBURNE, of Illinois, in the chair, and took up the bill to supply the deficiency for the year ending June next.

Mr. BROOKS, of N. Y., (Dem.,) said when he first became representated with Congress, a deficiency bill of even $2,000,000 would have created general excitement and alarm. The pending bill proposed to appropriate four and a half or five million dollars. His main objection to the bill was to the creation of offices without law, and the proposition now to pay them, and he would never sanction that assumption of power by the Executive authority. The bill provided for the salaries of 400 new clerks. But it was the duty of the Administration to have foreseen the necessity of these disbursements and send the estimates to Congress a year ago. In this bill, the most extraordinary estimates were made of deficiencies in the appropriations for public buildings, fences, grading, furniture, &c. He was an old Hunker Whig, and nothing else. He would support the Administration in a rigorous prosecution of the war for Constitutional purposes. But there had not been an economical, prudent administration of public affairs. The Treasury Department is heart and core, in the manufacture of public money, in its public credit, and its treasury notes was rotten, and could not withstand investigation a day or hour. Cooswell, for sterling notes, was in prison. Dr. Gwynn had been arrested for frauds, and another man was at the head of the Treasury-note Department, who had made a fraudulent report on the construction of public buildings at Charleston.

Mr. WILSON, of Iowa, (Union,) wished to know under what Administration the extraordinary expenditures for the Charleston Custom-House were made.

Mr. BROOKS said, when formerly Democrats committed frauds, they found refuge in a foreign land, while the defaulting Republicans remained in their native land and claimed the highest honors of the State.

Mr. SCHENCK, of Pennsylvania, (Union,) said many Democrats were kept in office by the present Administration, spared as monuments of mercy. He had made an effort, but without success, to have them discharged. As to the charge of usurpation, it should be known that a larger number of clerks was needed for the increased operations. The business of settling the claims and accounts of soldiers was very much behind hand, and hence the importance of additional clerical force.

An amendment was adopted appropriating $25,000 to complete the Post-office building in Philadelphia.

During the proceedings on an appropriation for sculpture,

Mr. BROOKS, of New York, said the Proclamation of the President for the emancipation of slaves would not end the war. It must be done by the power of the sword and admin ration. To say the Proclamation would do it was a delusion.

Mr. SHANK, of Kentucky, (Union,) said as a Southern man identified with the institution of Slavery, there remained behind the rebellion that which gave it strength and power, and which must be destroyed and overthrown while the army stood in front. The very life-blood of the rebellion is drawn from African Slavery, and wherever we tap this foundation of the rebellion, our efforts will be effectual. (Applause.)

Mr. MALLORY, of Kentucky, (Border State Union,) entered his solemn protest against the sentiments uttered by his colleague. Kentucky scorns them and has given evidence of the fact that she dare.

Mr. SHANK asked whether Kentucky did not, after the issuing of the Proclamation, give 50,000 majority for the Union and the enforcement of the laws.

Mr. MALLORY replied yes, but against the Administration of President Lincoln as denounced by his colleague himself. Did his colleague deny this?

Mr. SHANK did not deny it.

Mr. MALLORY said the votes of Kentucky, as expressed through her Legislature and Convention, were that he should stand by her State through thick and thin, while opposing the Emancipation Proclamation as a usurpation.

Mr. SHANK explained his position in the late canvass, which was that, while opposed to the operation of the Proclamation upon the Union men of the South, so far as the rebels in arms were concerned, he would take their negroes and their infernal lives and crush them to atoms. (Applause.) He would ask Republicans whether he was in favor of supporting a Constitution which denied to the negro all the rights and privileges he would give to Union men, and whether he would pass Emancipation of Southern negroes.

Mr. MALLORY replied that he would carry on the war with all the power the Constitution gave, but would destroy the rebel armies, and restore the rebels to allegiance to the Constitution and the laws. He hoped he would have magnanimity enough to spare their property, and let the people of the South come back to their allegiance, living peacably under their own vine and fig-tree. He wanted no heart-burnings.

Mr. WADSWORTH, of Kentucky, (Border State Union,) referred to a speech of Mr. SHANK, to show that the latter was opposed to the radical measures of the Administration, and that if elected to Congress he would vote for a War Democrat for Speaker.

Mr. SHANK replied that there was no War Democrat to could vote for; none such had been nominated. He therefore supported the gentleman who now so ably filled the chair. He was proud to stand by him, because that gentleman was for the Government, the Constitution and the Union, and he never had supported any man opposed to the war.

Mr. WADSWORTH, of Kentucky, arraigned his colleague (Mr. SHANK) for his betrayal of the Union party of Kentucky, and unfaithfulness to the pledges he made to it. He regretted that his colleague's opinions had undergone such a change, for if they had been known he would have chosen a man opposed to the radical measures of the Administration.

Mr. SHANK said he went into the election on the platform of high and extreme war measures, and non-philanthropy. He was nominated by a convention which the Louisville Journal denounced as a radical abolition convention. He was elected by over 5,000 majority. Men who owned more negroes than all of them together, had indorsed his course in voting for Speaker COLFAX.

Mr. CLAY, of Kentucky, (Union,) wished to know whether he was included in the charge of violating pledges.

Mr. MALLORY replied that he had not in the remotest manner alluded to his colleague. He did not know his colleague's views on the Emancipation Proclamation.

Mr. CLAY said he had made a pledge that he would make no pledges. He was thus left free to vote for the man best qualified for Speaker. He was independent, and would act as the most to benefit his country, and on his action would return and face his constituents.

Without further notice on the bill, on motion of Mr. STEVENS, the Committee rose.

The House then adjourned at 5½ o'clock.

The Prize Ring.

PRIZE FIGHT AT ASTORIA, L. I.—FORTY-THREE ROUNDS FOUGHT.—JOE GRAHAM VICTOR.—The pugilistic mania, which has been raging ever since HEENAN and KING had their set-to over the water, broke out on Sunday morning, in a hotly-contested ring fight at Joe COOK'S "Sunnyside" Hotel. The combatants were JOE GRAHAM, of this city, and young DONOGHUE, also a New-Yorker. The former was seconded by JACK LAWRENCE, formerly a trainer of MORRISSEY and BILLY DONNELLY. DONOGHUE'S seconds were JIMMY ELLIOTT and GERMAN LEE. The fight took place about 1 o'clock, in a ball room, which was lit up with kerosene for the purpose. About four hundred persons were present. Forty-three rounds were fought, when GRAHAM was declared the winner of the purse, $200, in consequence of DONOGHUE going down before an exchange of blows. At the start GRAHAM was not the favorite, and for the first five rounds DONOGHUE threw him heavily, having everything his own way. From that time until the close GRAHAM gained steadily by hard hitting and shrewd getting away. The men, who are both light weights, showed a good degree of gameness, and only the previous bad training of the defeated man prevented the fight from being still more severe. Quite a number of distinguished buffers were present.

AN ATTEMPTED PRIZE FIGHT—THE POLICE DISPERSE THE CROWD AND ARREST ONE OF THE PRINCIPALS.—Yesterday morning at daylight a prize ring was formed by a rope around four apple trees in the orchard of HENRY HERRESHOFF, half a mile from Cook's Hill, at Astoria, for a fight between MIKE NOONAN, of Brooklyn, and OWEN SWIFT, of Buffalo. Just as the men were about to step into the ring, a shrill whistle was heard, and about forty inoffensive-looking men who had been quietly looking on, turned out to be Brooklyn policemen in citizens' clothes. They were armed with clubs and revolvers. Instantly the work of dispersing the crowd began. Locust persuaders fell about in all directions with considerable damage to heads and arms. The tallest kind of skedaddling succeeded, as the principals, seconds and amateurs endeavored to get away. From the surrounding trees the valiant buffers dropped as if shot, and the whole three hundred valiants took to their heels for the Sunnyside Hotel. Thither the police followed, hanging on their rear like an avenger, and wherever the club fell, blood followed. NOONAN, one of the would-be pugilists, was arrested, as was also a large number of lookers-on and abettors. NOONAN, however, was the only one held. He is now in charge of the Queens County authorities. The proprietor of the ground had his arm injured. A member of a Brooklyn engine company had his arm drawn from its socket; about a dozen heads were laid open, and one or two men were pulled from their carriages and clubbed. NOONAN had a personal encounter with Inspector of Police JOHN S. FOTZ, but the chief seized him by the throat and secured him. Thus was prevented a shameful and bloody prize fight, but if rumor can be credited, the work is not all done yet, as several other similar fights are said to have been arranged by ambitious buffers in this City.

THE AFRICAN CIVILIZATION SOCIETY, most of whose officers are persons of responsibility and high religious character, and whose design is to help the negro race to civilization by negro agencies, is engaged in establishing schools among the enslaved people of the District of Columbia and the South. I am confident that this plan is the best adapted to the exigency, and that it will be faithfully fulfilled by the excellent men who have it in charge. Having this confidence, I have engagement to receive such sums as may be contributed, and pass the money over to the Society, acknowledging the receipt in the public prints.

KENDALL & CO.:

GENTLEMEN: My hair, which has been very strong and abundant, commenced falling out by the handfull, so much so that I would soon have been left without one, but that I was fortunately recommended to try your AMBOLINE, and I have much pleasure in stating that after using two bottles of it, my hair quite ceased falling out, and is now getting as strong and heavy as ever. Yours truly,

MINA GEARY.

Dec. 28, 1863. No. 68 West 45th-st., New-York.

KENDALL'S AMBOLINE

Is a stimulating extract of flowers, roots and herbs, for the growth, beauty and permanent vigor of the hair. It has been used in thousands of cases where the hair was coming out in handfull, and has never failed to arrest its decay and promote a healthy growth.

It also prevents the hair from turning prematurely gray, cures dandruff, keeps the head free from all eruptions, cures diseases of the scalp, is a preventive of sunburn, freckles, and as a dressing, imparts health and pleasantness to the head.

Fill up in a box containing 3 bottles, one to be used at night as a restorative, the other for morning use as a dressing. Price $1 per box.

DEAFNESS

NOISES IN THE HEAD,
Diseases of the Eye, Ear & Throat,
CATARRH CURED
BY
DR. VON EISENBERG,
AT HIS CONSULTING ROOMS,

DEAFNESS AND CATARRH.

No. 22 Bergen-st., New-York, Oct. 1, 1863.

Dr. Von Eisenberg:

DEAR SIR: Without recapitulating the numerous benefits I have received through your wonderful cure of the deafness I have labored under many years, the blessings I enjoy will convince the most skeptical.

I have tried many aurists, in Europe and America, without success. I was still deaf as a post.

Three years ago I entered your office, underwent one operation, hoping, yet doubting. I should receive any relief, but was agreeably disappointed in finding the genius of your profession.

The innate skill you possess cured my deafness in one almost painless operation.

The joy I experienced was indescribable; 'twas a new life to me.

My hearing is perfect to this day.

I strongly advise all who are suffering under a difficulty of hearing, or total deafness, to consult you immediately, as I also personally recommend all who apply to me. The numerous calls upon my time and patience, yet, remembering my own long, weary affliction, cause me to pity them.

This is not written to advertise your well-known, universal reputation—that would be puerile; but as a measure of precaution, to induce all to call on you at once, without troubling me; yet I do not refuse to see any one who comes to me. This is the only way I can show my gratitude.

I also call the attention of those who are suffering from Catarrh, which disease I have labored under one year or more.

I experienced difficulty in breathing, languor, heaviness over the eyes, a sense of tightness on the brain, and copious expectorations of a hard and viscid nature. Accompanying this is a "polypus," quite filling the right nostril. On the 26th ult. you operated on both, killing the polypus, which is gradually passing away, and giving me great relief from the Catarrh. One more operation will effectually cure.

This testimonial brings with it my unalloyed and grateful thanks, with but a poor delineation of your wondrous skill as an Aurist.

I am, Sir, yours very gratefully,
EDWARD TEMPLE HARRISON.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 10, 1863.

Dr. H. H. Sterling, No. 449 Broadway, New-York:

DEAR SIR: Feeling it to be a duty which I owe to you and the world, I address you for the purpose of stating some facts with reference to your AMBROSIA. About one year ago my hair commenced falling out, and in a short time there was but little of it left on my head, and that was thin and short. Feeling greatly mortified at its loss and the appearance of my head, I tried various preparations advertised to restore lost hair, &c., but without avail, until my attention was called to an advertisement of your AMBROSIA, with a cut from a photograph from life of Mrs. L. A. Brown. I then determined to try it faithfully, and commenced its use at once, and the result could not have been more satisfactory. My hair is now extremely thick, being an entirely new crop, and is from an inch to an inch and a half in length, and is still growing rapidly.

Attributing this gratifying and wonderful result solely to the use of your AMBROSIA, I feel bound to make the fact known, with permission to use my name and also offer you the use of my photograph, showing the remarkable effect of your preparation on my hair.

Very respectfully and gratefully, yours, &c.,
Miss MINNI APPLETON,
No. 134 South Russell-st., Boston.

STAMMERING CURED.

TO THE AFFLICTED.—This is to certify that my son Daniel was an inveterate stammerer for many years. Some weeks ago I placed him under the care of Prof. HURLBERT, at No. 20 Cooper Union, New-York, and the result has been a most happy one. He is completely cured. He was in poor health, but now is vigorous and very healthy.

READ WHO SAYS SO!

From Rev. Levi G. Beck, Pastor of the Baptist Meeting, Pemberton, N. J., formerly of the North Baptist Church, Philadelphia.

I have known Hoofland's German Bitters favorably for a number of years. I have used them in my own family and have been so pleased with their effects that I was induced to recommend them to many others, and know that they have operated in a strikingly beneficial manner. I take great pleasure in thus publicly proclaiming this fact, and calling the attention of those afflicted with the diseases for which they are recommended, to these Bitters, knowing from experience that my recommendation will be satisfied. I do this unsolicited, as I think Hoofland's Bitters is intended to benefit the afflicted, and is "not a rum drink." Yours truly,

LEVI G. BECK.

Although not disposed to favor or recommend Patent Medicines in general, through distrust of their ingredients and effects, I yet know of no sufficient reason why a man may not testify to the benefits he believes he has received from any simple preparation, in the hope that he may thus contribute to the benefit of others.

I do this the more readily in regard to Hoofland's German Bitters, prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, of this City, because I was prejudiced against them for many years, under the impression that they were chiefly an alcoholic mixture. I am indebted to my friend, Robert Shoemaker, Esq., for the removal of this prejudice by proper tests, and for encouragement to try them, when suffering from great and long continued debility. The use of three bottles of these Bitters, at the beginning of the present year, was followed by evident relief and restoration to a degree of bodily and mental vigor which I had not felt for six months before, and had almost despaired of regaining. I therefore thank God and my friend for directing me to the use of them.

J. NEWTON BROWN.

From Rev. Joseph H. Kennard, Pastor of the Tenth Baptist Church.

DR. JACKSON—Dear Sir: I have been frequently requested to connect my name with commendations of different kinds of medicines, but remaining the practice as out of my appropriate sphere, I have in all cases declined; but with a clear proof in various instances, and particularly in my own family, of the usefulness of Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters, I depart for once from my usual course, to express my full conviction that, for general debility or weakness, and especially for Liver Complaint, it is a safe and valuable preparation. In some cases it may fail; but usually, I doubt not, it will be very beneficial to those who suffer from the above causes.

Yours, very respectfully,
J. H. KENNARD,

From Rev. Warren Randolph, Pastor of Baptist Church Germantown, Penn.

DR. C. M. JACKSON—Dear Sir: Personal experience enables me to say that I regard the German Bitters prepared by you as a most excellent medicine. In cases of severe cold and general debility I have been greatly benefited by the use of the Bitters, and doubt not they will produce similar effects in others.

Yours, truly,
WARREN RANDOLPH,
Germantown, Penn.

From Rev. J. S. Turner, Pastor of Hedding M. E. Church, Philadelphia.

DR. JACKSON—Dear Sir: Having used your German Bitters in my family frequently, I am prepared to say that it has been of great service. I believe that in most cases of general debility of the system it is the safest and most valuable remedy of which I have any knowledge.

Yours, respectfully, J. S. TURNER.
